SECRET MANIFOLD BY POLICE

Here is the "secret manifold" issued from police headquarters this afternoon for private distribution among the members of the Police Department.

It is a list, revised by the department heads, of the thefts reports to the police within the last twenty-four hours.

The thefts not listed here are considered by the police superiors as either "too trivial" or "too important" to bother the entire force with. The "too trivial" cases will have to be looked after by the officers of the station to which each case has been reported. The "too important" are left for the real detectives attached to the chief inspector's office in Pemberton Square.

Here is the manifold:

Tuesday, Aug. 3, 1909.

715, Bicycles—A White bicycle, 20-inch frame, No. 71,481, with an Orient fork, painted black; and a Liberty bicycle, black frame, 22-inch frame, unicorn tires.

716—Number of watch reported in item No. 707 (yesterday's manifold) is 10,296,124.

717—Watches: Gent's filled hunting case watch. Gent's silver open-face Standard watch and a gold rope chain attached.

718—Bag: Small leather hand bag, containing an alligator skin pocketbook and $30 in money, $10 of which was gold, by a medium-sized man, light complexion.

E-E YAH! E-E YAH!

Manager Hugh Jennings of the Tigers, who open series with Red Sox to-day with double-header at Huntington avenue grounds.

30,000 AT RED SOX GAMES

Greatest Crowd Ever Seen at Huntington Avenue Grounds Witnesses Double Battle Between Red Sox and Detroit. Ticket Selling Stopped at 1:45 O'clock.

HUNTINGTON AVENUE GROUNDS, Aug. 3.—All baseball attendance records in Boston were broken this afternoon, when 30,000 excited "fans" poured into the grounds to see the double-header between the Red Sox and the Detroits, champions of the American League.

So great was the crowd that the management was forced to stop selling tickets fifteen minutes before the first game was scheduled to begin. The attendents, aided by the police, however, jammed the late comers behind the ropes in centre and right fields and finally enough space was made to allow the ticket sellers to resume business.

All Records Smashed.

The largest crowd, previous to to-day's throng, was in October, 1904, when the New York and Boston teams were fighting for the championship of the American League. On that day nearly 26,000 people were jammed into the park. Since then 4,500 extra seats have been built.

The crowds began coming hours before the time for opening the gates and when the ticket sellers began business there were several thousand lined up in front of the box offices.

The management was prepared for a big attendance, but the great crush took them by surprise. Only their perfect system of handling large crowds prevented a bad mix-up. The trolley people were also taken off their feet and there were not nearly enough cars to handle the baseball traffic.

Jennings got his team back to its regular shape in the games this afternoon. He had his cripples all ready for war, with the fighting spirit as strong as limberger. Claude Rossman, who was supposed to have lost his throwing arm earlier in the season, was back at the initial corner and that let Crawford resume his old stand in centrefield. Moriarty, who has been at first base in many of the games since Rossman was forced to leave the field, went to third base, his usual place.

This was a pleasant surprise to the Boston fans for they figured that the team would be a little topsy turvy. It was their first glimpse of Rossman on first. He was seen, though, at bat as a pinch hitter when the Tigers last played here.

Manager Lake of the Red Sox sent his regular men into the games, prepared for the hardest contests of the year.

TURK ARMY INVADES CRETE; WAR FEARED

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 3.—Four transports loaded with troops sailed for Crete to-day, accompanied by a Turkish fleet. The Sultan's forces will attempt a landing, and war between Greece and Turkey is likely.

The troops of the protecting powers were withdrawn from Crete on July 26, amid great rejoicing on the part of the native population. Turkey had already begun the concentration of troops near the Greek frontier. Twelve batteries of artillery and two squadrons of cavalry arrived at Jamima several days ago.

NATIONAL LEAGUE GROUNDS, Chicago, Aug. 3.—The Boston Doves and the Chicago Cubs to-day were all set for their first battle in the series that will continue until Saturday. Nothing better in the weather line could have been handed out by the man handling the weather valves. The sun was shining brightly, while the temperature was just right to put the athletes in fine fettle. The Doves were full of pepper in preliminary practice.

Harry Smith, new manager of the Doves, was eager to start with his right foot in the Chicago series and for that reason was shy in definitely announcing who he would send to the mound. For the other fellows it was between Tuckey, the Southpaw and "Red" White who handed the Cubs the only defeat that the Doves have given them this season.

Manager Chance had Kroh on the warming pan. This left-hand pitcher defeated the Doves twice in Boston. The pitcher believed he could turn the trick again. The Cubs are fighting hard these days to overtake the Pirates in the National League race. Five games separated them before to-day's contest began.

Smith so far has had the Doves on their toes in the Western swing. The men declare they are playing to their limit because they like the new manager and want to make good for him as well as for themselves.

TARIFF VOTE IN THE SENATE ON THURSDAY

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—The clouds rolled away in the tariff fight in the Senate to-day, and an agreement was reached to take a vote on the conference report on Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Peace fluttered in with the settled determination to introduce a concurrent resolution in the Senate and House, amending the language in the free hide clause and eliminating the objectionable joker. The Senate does not look for a long drawn out fight over the bill.

The concurrent resolution will direct the enrolling clerk to write into the enrolled bill the desired changes in the leather schedule. At 1:10 the Senate adjourned until to-morrow at noon.

Senator Culberson of Texas gave notice that when the proposed joint resolution to correct the leather schedule is submitted, he would offer an amendment to place cotton bagging on the free list.

Senator Clapp of Minnesota also gave notice of an amendment. He protested against the method of operation of the maximum and minimum provision. Under its workings, he said, France would only have three months' notice, while other countries would have six.

Senator Aldrich of Rhode Island said its entire operation had been worked out by the State Department and was satisfactory to all concerned.

Tillman Attacks Bill.

Senator Tillman of South Carolina charged that the conferees had emasculated the tariff commission plan.

Replying to questions by Senator Newlands of Nevada, Senator Aldrich said the language of the report regarding the tariff commission was broader and more liberal than that contained in either the Senate or the House bill.

Although he had not entirely indorsed it in conference he said that practically it granted all that had been asked for by earnest advocates of a commission.

SHEEDY DYING, TELLS HOW HE GAUGED MEN

By ADA PATTERSON.

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—Pat Sheedy is dying. The doctor says so. His wife fears so. The man who has led a life of chance admits that he is playing the last card in his last game.

"I am not afraid." A grim smile flitted across his features to-day. "I know I am going to get a square deal. I'll have a good chance as I had here. Better. The Maker plays no favorites."

Sheedy lies in a big snowy bed in a long, cool room above the art gallery that is the pride of his later, and, to use his own term, "squarer" years, at No. 161 West 34th street. There are new red and white striped awnings at the windows in front. Doors open into the hall and the neat dining-room at the rear. So far as the outward man goes, 'tis a comfortable passing for Pat Sheedy. He lacks none of these externals which go to make the way easy. Even the "ministering angel of the poet" is there. There is a loving woman's hand to wait upon him. There are tender woman eyes to watch anxiously for any sign of hope that the passing may yet be distant.

How He Judged Men.

"No man has been happier in his home than Pat Sheedy, the owner of the names declares. "If I came home flush, or if I came home broke, it was all the same with my sweetheart."

It has been said of Pat Sheedy that he knew men better than any other man in New York. I asked him how he gauged a man.

"By talking to him," he answered. "You can't always judge by his face. A man may hide the softness of heart behind the hardest face. Generally I like a man who looks you squarely in the eye and keeps on looking, but that isn't an unfailing test. A man may be nervous or diffident. I judge considerably by his manner, though nervousness or diffidence may affect that. I judge a good deal by the warmth and earnestness of a hand clasp.

"But I judge most of all by talking with a man to find what kind of a man he is. Be he as much on his guard as he likes, some speech will betray him to the student of men.

THAW SEES DEFEAT AND CELL AHEAD

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Aug. 3.—Harry Thaw is almost ready to-day to admit defeat of his present plan for liberation from the Matteawan Asylum for the Criminal Insane.

He has instructed his attorney to appeal from the possible adverse decision by Justice Mills. Failing such appeal, he will immediately reopen habeas corpus proceedings to have himself adjudged sane.

That Harry Thaw was and is insane on the subject of Stanford White was the substance of the testimony of Dr. Amos T. Baker, assistant superintendent of the Matteawan asylum to-day.

Doctor Baker was on the stand during the entire forenoon session before Justice Mills at White Plains. He was cross-examined at length by Charles Morschauser, Thaw's lawyer, but the direct testimony he gave as to Thaw's mental condition was not shaken.

Additional evidence of the insane actions of Harry K. Thaw were furnished to-day when Dr. Amos T. Baker, acting superintendent of Matteawan Asylum, was cross-examined by Mr. Morschauser, Thaw's counsel. Complying with the order of Justice Mills, the witness brought to the court a bundle of papers found secreted in Thaw's cell and clothing after a search while he was incarcerated in the madhouse. The papers included typewritten speeches and notes to be used as memorandum for the lawyers battling for the millionaire's release.

The data was not presented to the court when Dr. Baker was examined by District Attorney Jerome because the State's attorneys desired to withhold most of their evidence for rebuttal. Dr. Allen McLean Hamilton reached the office of District Attorney Winslow shortly before the session opened.

The lawyer for Thaw said that they had

MOORS RENEW ATTACK UPON THE SPANIARDS

LISBON, Aug. 3.—According to reports here, the Moors have renewed their general attack upon the Spaniards at Melilla, strengthened by re-enforcements from Mogador, Tetuan and Larache to the number of 12,000 men.

The natives within the walls of Melilla have revolted. Two thousand Kabyles from Couta are on their way to re-enforce the Moorish army at Melilla. Those left behind have begun to sack the town.

350 BARCELONA LEADERS ARE SHOT BY THE SOLDIERS

PARIS (via French-Spanish frontier), Aug. 3.—Three hundred and fifty insurgents and leaders in the Barcelona rebellion have been executed by soldiers in the past three days at Montjuich fortress, outside the city, according to advices received to-day from Madrid.

Montjuich fortress is filled with prisoners and executions are being held continuously. The censorship, which is being rigorously maintained to keep the people in ignorance of the slaughter by the troops, has not been entirely successful and the revolt is ripe for a new awakening.

The government persistently proclaims that the internal situation is improved, but the mystery of the real situation stretches from frontier to frontier until enlightened by the censored dispatches which are being sent out.

The threatened general strike which was to start yesterday was averted temporarily in the capital. The rebel leaders sought to paralyze Spain and to isolate the nation by a tieup of railroads and telegraphs, but their attempt was abortive.

The real situation in Barcelona is not clearly known, although refugees at the frontier tell harrowing stories of what they passed through in the last five days.

TWO ACCIDENTS AT LAUNCHING

Two accidents somewhat marred the launching of the four-masted schooner Barbara to-day from the yard of Richard C. Green on Marginal street, East Boston. In the first place, Miss Charlotte A. Abbott, the thirteen-year-old niece of Captain Fernandino Francis, who will command the schooner, dropped the bottle of champagne which she was to christen the ship. The bottle was recovered by the captain in time to be broken on the schooner's bow. Then the ship stuck on the ways, and four tugs were necessary to pull her into the stream. When she finally took the water, she was given an ovation by passing craft. The Barbara was built to carry lumber from Southern ports to the George McQuesten Company of East Boston. She will replace the schooner George Barnet, which was burned at sea last Winter. Her capacity is 625,000 feet of lumber.

EX-SHAH OF PERSIA WILL BE EXILED

LONDON, Aug. 3.—The ex-Shah of Persia is to be exiled from his country. Under Secretary of Foreign Affairs Wood stated in the House of Commons this afternoon that the former ruler would be escorted to the frontier as soon as certain points are settled, such as his future place of residence, the amount of royal pension and the transfer of the crown jewels to his successor.

ENTERTAINED AT THEATRE.

The children and aged persons connected with the Leopold Morse Home at Mattapan were entertained at the Orpheum Theatre this afternoon by Mr. Lindsay Morison, the manager, who invited them to witness the performance of "Merely Mary Ann" by Israel Zangwill. The party was under the chaperonage of Superintendent Woolf of the institution.

KIDNAPPERS ASK $25,000 FOR 2 CHILDREN

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 3.—With one suspect under arrest and eight detectives, the pick of Chief Smith's force, and practically every special officer in the Carr street district working on the case, the police had this morning failed to unearth any definite clew leading to the discovery of Grace and Alfonso Viviano, three and five year old children of a wealthy Italian manufacturer, who were kidnapped from their home Monday afternoon and are held for $25,000 ransom.

The one clew revealed by the police thus far leads vaguely to New Orleans. Joe Bogano, No. 1911 North Thirteenth street, who is under arrest at the Carr street station, says a man named "Tony," who answers the description of Samuel Turissi, an employe of the Vivianos, last seen with the children, told him Monday he was going to New Orleans. The children disappeared from their home, No. 1011 North Seventh street, with Turissi shortly after noon Monday. They have not been seen since.

Shortly after the children disappeared a shortly after the children disappeared a letter demanding $25,000 ransom was delivered to the father of the children, Pietro Viviano, and his cousin. The Vivianos are manufacturers of spaghetti and live in the same building.

"The children are with me and are safe," read the letter, "and they will be safe if you send the $25,000 to Wellston."

This missive was signed "Baska Chinsa" (colored mouths. Wellston is a suburb of St. Louis.

The father of the children went to the place designated, carrying a satchel and guarded by detectives. None of the abductors appeared.

FISTFIGHTS IN LISBON CORTES

LISBON, Aug. 3.—Several fist fights occurred in the Cortes to-day when the free thinkers presented a petition for the suppression of religious orders in Portugal.

The free thinkers, largely Republicans, marched to the Parliament building with their petition, in accordance with plans outlined at a great mass meeting yesterday.

Among other things the petitioners asked the abrogation of the recent law permitting religious associations to acquire landed property, a procedure which, up to the present time, has been illegal.

Senhor Camacho moved the consideration of the subject, and when the motion was voted down the galleries broke out in protestation. The deputies engaged in a struggle, in which desks and chairs were overturned, and the chamber had to be cleared twice. The tumult was continued in the streets, but without serious results.

WOMAN HELD WITHOUT BAIL FOR MURDER

Mrs. Elizabeth Richmond, proprietor of the Hotel Florence, No. 135 Cambridge street, East Cambridge, was this afternoon held without bail for the Grand Jury on the charge that she murdered Stewart McTavish, a hospital attendant of Gardner, on July 23. After Judge Charles Almy had heard a few witnesses in the Cambridge Court, he decided that the evidence ought to be considered by the Grand Jury, which meets in Lowell early in September.

The woman appeared in court to-day clad in a neat white shirt waist, black skirt and black hat. She was cool and collected throughout the trial. District Attorney John J. Higgins conducted the hearing for the government. When arraigned on July 24 Mrs. Richmond pleaded not guilty.

Fifteen Witnesses Called.

Including the policemen, fifteen witnesses were sworn for the government by Clerk William E. Forbes. Attorney Ralph W. Glong of Boston appeared for Mrs. Richmond, while District Attorney Higgins conducted the case for the government.

"You didn't kill McTavish, did you?" suddenly asked the district attorney during the course of his examination of John Drohan, the cook at the Hotel Florence.

"No, sir," snapped Drohan, just as suddenly.

To Timothy Clifford, long a lodger at the hotel and the man who first found the dead body of McTavish, the district attorney just as sharply demanded.

"You didn't kill McTavish, did you, Clifford?"

"What do you think I am, crazy?" exclaimed Clifford. "No, sir."

Mrs. Richmond, taking the keenest of interest in everything, sat in a chair just beside the prisoner's dock. Chief Inspector Patrick J. Hurley, Lieutenant James E. Hall and Policemen Joseph Shannon, John Cummings and John Kelliher were among the government witnesses sworn.

Examiner on Stand.

Dr. William D. Swan, medical examiner, testified that McTavish, whom he found lying on a bed in Mrs. Richmond's room in the hotel on the afternoon of July 23, had died of many injuries. His skull had been crushed in, and he had been shot through the left side of his head directly above the eye. There were several other wounds on the man's head.

Drohan, the cook, identified plans of the house and the different rooms. He told of Clifford and him finding McTavish's dead body on the bed in the room. He said they had found Mrs. Richmond stretched out on the kitchen floor, intoxicated, and that when they carried her to her room they found McTavish.

Inspector Hurley said that the blood-stained axe and revolver had been taken to Professor William F. Whitney of the Harvard Medical School for examination.

Drohan said he had tried to find Mrs. Richmond on Thursday and finally located her in her sitting room. The doors were locked. He asked her for money with which to purchase food for the boarders which she refused.

He denied to Attorney Glong on cross-examination, that he had said to Clifford: "I'd put a bullet in him (McTavish)." This was after it was alleged that Clifford had said: "Now that this herring-choker has come back the house will be spoiled."

He denied he had said that he would shoot both Mrs. Richmond and McTavish if he had thought they were especially good friends.

It was here that the district attorney demanded if Drohan had shot the man.

Found McTavish's Body.

Clifford told of finding McTavish's body when he and Drohan carried Mrs. Richmond to her room. He said that the door was locked, but that the key which opened his room opened that door and then they found McTavish on the bed dead.

Clifford said that Drohan exclaimed: "Oh, my God, she's killed him!"

Clifford said that he had heard the telephone in the sitting room ringing repeatedly on Thursday afternoon and Thursday night, but that it wasn't answered.

Clifford testified that once when he had asked Drohan if McTavish was in the hotel the latter had said: "I'd put a shot in him in a minute." He said he had heard no disturbance in the house that Thursday night.

Lying on Kitchen Floor.

John Ahearn was the government's last witness. He boarded at the Hotel Florence for sixteen months. He said that Friday morning, July 23, Mrs. Richmond gave him $15 with which to pay the water rent. He said that afternoon he saw her lying on the kitchen floor.

Chief Inspector Hurley gave his own personal recognizance for each of the fifteen witnesses in the case at bonds of $200 for each.

Mrs. Richmond's two little daughters, Florence, nine, and Mary, seven, were placed in the care of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children. The woman herself was remanded to the Cambridge House of Correction pending the meeting of the Grand Jury.

ZEPPELIN IN AIR PLUNGE

BERLIN, Aug. 3.—Thousands of fear-stricken spectators at Frankfort to-day saw the dirigible Zeppelin balloon start out on the long journey to Cologne suddenly halt at an altitude of 120 feet, and then swiftly descend when the rear propellor broke in two pieces.

Those who looked on thought the passengers would be dashed to death, but the big balloon floated safely to earth, where repairs were begun. The balloon was traveling full speed when the accident took place.

TRANSPORTS TO GET READY

Four army transports, the Kilpatrick, Meade, Sumner and McClellan, now at New York and Newport News, have been ordered to get in readiness to take part in the coming military manoeuvres on the South Shore. The transports are to embark the troops of General Tasker H. Bliss's army of invasion at New York and bring them to the Massachusetts coast.

MARINE OFFICERS RESIGN.

The resignation of Second Lieutenant James R. N. Boyd of the United States Marine Corps, on duty at the Charlestown Navy Yard, has just been accepted on the ground that it was for the good of the service. Charges alleging failure on the part of Boyd to pay his debts had recently been filed against him. He was formerly on duty at marine corps headquarters in Washington.

BABIES BENEFIT BY NEW SKIN DISCOVERY

Stops Itching Immediately, Soothes and Comforts the Little Ones.

A demonstration of the efficacy and entire harmlessness of poslam, the new skin discovery, is afforded when it is applied to the tender skin of infants who are tortured with rashes, chafings, scaly and crusted humors and other skin aggravations. Its effect is soothing, the itching stops at once, the skin heals and is quickly restored to normal condition.

In the various forms of skin troubles in both infants and adults, poslam produces beneficial results from the first application. Eczema, acne, herpes, rash, tetter, etc., yield readily to its remarkable curative properties. Occasional applications will quickly banish pimples, blotches and complexion blemishes and will relieve and cure itching feet, scaly scalp, humors, etc.

Poslam can be had for fifty cents at any reliable druggist's, particularly all Riker-Jaynes drug stores and Houghton & Dutton's drug department, who make a specialty of it. Or the Emergency Laboratories, No. 32 West Twenty-fifth street, New York City, will send a trial supply free by mail to any one who will write for it. This is sufficient to show results in 24 hours.

WORLD RACER STARTS HOME

YOKOHAMA, Aug. 3 (via cable).—Leave to-day by Empress of Japan for dash across Pacific. Reach Vancouver 14th and home 19th. Will win sure. All well. MORRIS.

The above cable received from Benjamin Morris by the BOSTON AMERICAN to-day shows that the eastward-bound world racer is homeward bound and will be back in Boston in sixteen days. He is exactly on schedule, and if nothing interferes he will make the 25,000 mile circuit in forty-three days.

H. L. Whitman, the westward-bound racer, is in Siberia, and is due at Irkutsk late to-morrow, whence, after a day's rest, he will get under way for Moscow and civilization. He is due in Boston about August 20, which will complete the circle of the globe in forty-two days and some hours.

It will be a matter of hours and minutes between Morris and Whitman, with a question of watching connections in this country as closely as abroad.

NEW YORK TAILORS' STRIKE EXTENDED

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—With 13,000 men already out and 17,000 more ready to quit, New York to-day faces the most serious strike of coat tailors in six years. At a mass meeting of the Brotherhood of Tailors in Clinton Hall it was decided to make the strike general. More than 5,000 women are among the strikers. Committees went through the shops after the meeting and called out several thousand more tailors. By to-morrow it is expected that 30,000 will be on strike.

LIGHTNING'S OWN INITIAL.

YORK, Pa., Aug. 3.—In a thunderstorm here a lightning bolt stamped its own initial "L" upon the lawn of Adam Spotz, in Windsor Park, and the many who have viewed the freak are puzzled to know whether the perfectly formed giant letter can have any significance. In the midst of the storm there was a flash of light which filled the yard with blue flame. Directly afterward the letter appeared five or six feet long, with edges clear cut and the grass within the outlines burned yellow.

GREENHOOD DIDN'T APPEAR

Elisha Greenhood, the attorney fined $200 for contempt of court before United States Commissioner Hayes, by Judge Dodge of the United States District Court, did not appear before the Commissioner to-day when the case of his client, Louis Canner, charged with conspiracy to conceal assets in bankruptcy, was called. Attorney Josiah Bond, who appeared for Jacob Freedman, a co-defendant, announced that he also represented Canner. The cases were continued until August 28.

Yankee Girl Climbs Mt. Blanc in Snowstorm.

GENEVA—Miss Helen Bauer, the young Chicago girl who has just climbed Mont Blanc successfully, is the first American of her sex to reach the summit during the year. Accompanied by two guides, Miss Bauer climbed to Grands Mulets, an Alpine hut over 10,000 feet up in the air, where the party spent the night and attacked Great White Mountain at dawn. Owing to recent heavy snowfalls the climbing was very laborious, but Miss Bauer and her companions reached the summit at 9 A. M. After an hour's rest and refreshment the climbers commenced the descent and reached Chamonix at 7 P. M. the same day.

Harriman Under New Treatment.

VIENNA—E. H. Harriman has come to Vienna for a new course of special treatment. He will now place himself under the care of Professor Carl Noorden, noted as the greatest physician in his line in Europe. The treatment is expected to continue several weeks. All the patients to whom he gives personal care are housed in a sanitarium which he maintains in one of the residential suburbs of this city. Mr. Harriman has two floors in that establishment. He will occupy them with the members of his family, who accompanied him to Europe and who arrived with him this afternoon from Gastein. Harriman expects to sail for New York September 4.

Roosevelt Thanks Leipsic.

VIENNA—Ex-President Roosevelt has sent a telegram from Nairobi in Africa expressing to the rector of the Leipsic University his deep gratification at the honor the university has paid him in conferring upon him the degree of doctor of laws. Ambassador Hill sent a dispatch to Nairobi on the day on which the degree was conferred, securing an answer in twenty-four hours.

Corbett Makes London Hit.

LONDON—The reopening of the London Hippodrome witnessed Fanny Ward's advent in vaudeville. She met a cordial reception in a small sketch at the Oxford Music Hall. James J. Corbett made a big hit with his monologue. Although the stories and jokes were entirely American, the audience seemed to catch the points immediately. Corbett was recalled a dozen times. His success was so pronounced that a dozen managers have offered to engage him.

Sweden Bars Liquor Sales.

STOCKHOLM—The sale of alcoholic liquors has been prohibited throughout Sweden in view of the general strike that is to be inaugurated on Wednesday. Wine and beer will be served in hotels, but only to those taking solid meals. The Governors of provinces and policemen who were away from their posts on holiday leave have been recalled. It is feared that the railway and postal employes will join the strike.

260 Italian Soldiers Poisoned.

NAPLES—Two hundred and sixty soldiers of the Nineteenth Regiment of Italian foot soldiers are in the hospital suffering from poison. An investigation showed lax cleaning methods in the soldiers' mess room, and this is said to have been responsible.

ABSTAINERS GAIN VICTORY IN ROXBURY

Because of the opposition to saloons in Precinct 9 of Ward 17 by the clergy of both the Catholic and Protestant churches in that section, the petition of the parties filed with the Excise Board for a first and second-class license at the corner of Blue Hill avenue and Huckins street, Roxbury, has been withdrawn, according to a letter read at last night's meeting of St. Patrick's Total Abstinence and Literary Society. This is regarded as a victory for the members of the society.

DOCTORS IN LINE AGAINST HARRY THAW

not called the expert and that the physician would be subjected to a searching examination if he appeared as a witness for State. The State's battery of experts now consist of Dr. Austin Flint, Dr. Carlos McDonald, Dr. Amos T. Baker, Dr. William Hirsch and Dr. Hamilton, each of whom will be expected to say in answer to Jerome's hypothetical query that Thaw is a dangerous paranoiac.

Thaw walked from the jail across the yard to the courthouse, his guard fighting a path through the crowd of women, young and old, who made an effort to shake the hand of the famous prisoner. Thaw quietly resented the attempts of his staff of private detectives to disperse the gathering. He smilingly acknowledged the sympathy offered by those who got close enough to grasp his hand and remained standing on the top step bowing to the cheering crowd.

Greets an Old Friend.

"I hope to be free in a week," Thaw said as he waved to the gathering before entering the court room. While waiting for Justice Mills, Thaw noticed Henry Harney, who occupied seat No. 5 in the jury box at the first murder trial, sitting in the body of the courtroom. Rising from his chair, Thaw walked over to greet the man who had caused the jury to disagree because he held out for forty-seven hours voting for acquittal.

The deputy sheriff guarding Thaw hurried over to the prisoner's side, but Thaw smilingly reassured the excited official that he intended only to shake hands with the former juror.

Jerome Greets Prisoner.

Resuming the cross-examination of Dr. Baker, Mr. Morschauser sought to show that unusual favors were granted to Dr. Flint, head of Jerome's alienists, to observe Thaw while he was in the madhouse. A concert, which Dr. Baker admitted was arranged by Dr. Flint, came in for lengthy discussion, but Morschauser made no headway with the witness.

Jerome opened his mail while the questioning went on and passed several letters to Thaw. The two laughed over a cartoon having to do with Jerome's failure to prosecute the looters of the Third avenue railroad. The district attorney and the man he twice prosecuted for murder were to all intents and purposes the best of friends as they talked about the cartoon.

Thaw Prompts Lawyer.

Morschauser tried to show that Dr. Baker had told Thaw there was nothing the matter with his brain, but the witness insisted that he had no recollection of having made the declaration.

"Did you tell Mr. Thaw that you didn't believe in souls because you had never seen any?" asked the lawyer after his client prompted him.

"I have no recollection of that, either," Dr. Baker responded.

"Did you ever tell Mr. Peabody that you had found no evidence of maniac depression insanity in Thaw?"

"I may have."

"Did you not tell me that the only complaint you had about Mr. Thaw was that he had violated the regulations by smoking?"

"An attendant had reported to me while Mr. Peabody was visiting Thaw that smoking was going on in the counsel room. Mr. Peabody denied that he had violated the rule and Thaw said he had seen no one smoking. The result was that I threatened to curtail some of the privileges I had extended to Thaw."

BOY HELD IN $800 ON ROBBERY CHARGE

Robert Stewart, a boy of nineteen, was arraigned before Judge Almy in the Cambridge Court to-day charged with breaking into the house of George O. G. Coles, No. 53 Church street, and held for the Grand Jury in $800. Stewart lives at No. 31 Murray street. He told the court he had been asleep in the Common, and on waking up went into the yard of the Coles house. He denied having entered the house. Mr. Coles, who has been away, was in court. He told how the house had been broken into and ransacked. He found some jewelry laid out on a bed, but was unable to say how much had been stolen.

FIREMAN DRAGGED BY RUNAWAY HORSES

PROVIDENCE, Aug. 3.—Fireman William Barry was badly injured in a runaway to-day, being dragged by a pair of frightened horses. He was taken to the hospital, where it was thought that his skull may have been fractured. Barry and Fireman William Young were exercising the horses when one stumbled and scared both. Both were thrown, and Barry clung to the reins. The horses were stopped by a car conductor after they had run two miles and smashed an express wagon and their own during the dash.

SUICIDE, AS FATHER WAS.

OAKLAND, Aug. 3.—Warren C. Roland, who killed his wife and himself in Grand Rapids, Mich., repeated a tragedy which was enacted in the Roland family about six years ago, when George Roland, the father of Warren Roland, and for many years a Southern Pacific employe in this city, killed his wife and himself with a razor in their home in Centre street while temporarily insane. Warren Roland was a former convict, having been sentenced in San Joaquin county in 1902 to serve a term in prison for grand larceny. He has a brother named George residing in this city.

CAPE TOWNS IN PERIL FROM FOREST FIRE

FALMOUTH, Aug. 3.—Driven by a strong wind which has shifted into the east, the forest fires in this section broke away from the 1,200 or more fighters on the outskirts of West Falmouth. A path of flame two miles wide was within half a mile of the village at noon. It was feared that if the outbuildings caught fire there would be little chance of saving the main buildings. Backfires can't be set because the strong wind only drives them on in advance of the main fire.

Some of the buildings in danger are the homes of John Edmund, E. L. Thompson, Charles Burke, E. H. Bowman and Elijah Crowell, all on the Mill Road.

Canal Workers Firemen.

All the available men in the towns of Bourne, Buzzard's Bay, the Falmouths and Sandwich, all of which are threatened, have been pressed into service with shovels and brooms. Stores in all these places have closed and clerks and proprietors have taken up the call. About forty men from the dredgers which have begun the digging of the Cape Cod canal were also sent down here to help.

The danger zone is in a section of the town where there is no water service. The fire wardens think that with the change of wind there is a chance of narrowing the fire down to a triangle and bringing it to a point along the railroad.

Great Area Burned.

Captain Charles H. Turner of Hatchville said that the whole section north of West Falmouth to Hatchville has been burned over, or an area of fully fifteen square miles. By the hardest kind of work the residences of E. L. Benson and Dr. Charles Miller at North Falmouth were saved.

There have been many narrow escapes from death among the fire fighters. Fire Wardens William Hunt, George Noyes, George Tobey and Herbert Lawrence with a band of fire fighters were nearly cornered by the flames while trying to save the cranberry bogs of William Childs. After starting a back fire they were obliged to rush down the Hatchville road to escape.

Suspect Incendiarism.

The officers have been warned, too, to watch for persons along the road, as they are now laboring under the belief that some of the fires which they thought at first to have been built by the fire fighters have been started by incendiaries.

The fire started three days ago in Mills Hill, Bourne, and already has burned over timberland worth $85,000 and many acres of young growth upon which no estimate can be placed. Already an unoccupied house belonging to Manuel Utra has been destroyed, and the barn and outbuildings of Everett Benson, in Hatchville.

The Benson family left the house hurriedly with all their belongings, and it was with difficulty that the building was saved. Mr. Benson lost a large truck garden and two acres of corn.

HUSBAND CLEARED OF WIFE'S DEATH

LAWRENCE, Aug. 3.—The complaint against Francis A. Brown, charged with assault on his wife, Nellie, who died July 17 of lockjaw caused by a wound, was to-day dismissed by Judge J. J. Mahoney in the District Court. In his finding Judge Mahoney said that the defendant's story to the police coincided with the result of the autopsy. Police Lieutenant Charles R. Vose testified that Brown said he and his wife got up early on the morning of July 5 to see a crowd of boys who were celebrating under their window. Brown discharged his revolver and wanted his wife to do the same. A scuffle followed in which the weapon was discharged, the wad of the blank cartridge striking the woman in the hip. She worked as usual for two weeks, when she was taken ill and had to go to the hospital.

CZAR AND KING PLAN A GREAT COMBINATION

COWES, Aug. 3.—Czar Nicholas of Russia, the most hated of autocrats, now visiting King Edward here within the ringed circle of protecting British and Russian warships, will risk his life by coming ashore. His action will be an absolute defi to the threats made against him by anarchists since his visit was planned.

Some time before Thursday evening, when the Czar and his entourage, convoyed by a flotilla of Russian men-of-war, are to steam away on the imperial yacht Standart, the Russian monarch will venture ashore, causing the hundreds of Russian police of the third section, Scotland Yard and English Secret Service agents a busy day.

The real work of strengthening the triple entente of Russia, France and Great Britain was begun to-day when conferences of a political nature were held between King Edward and the Czar in person, and also between Premier Asquith and Sir Edward Grey, representing England, and M. Iswolsky, the Russian Minister of Foreign Affairs. The discussion and conferences are making international history and may change the future policies of Europe.

An Important Conference.

The talks were of a premeditated nature in the mutual interests of the great nations involved. The meeting of the monarchs is of the most serious portent of all such international visits in the last decade. There is no effort on the part of the government representatives to belittle the importance of the conference. Its prime motive is to establish a new and firm line of friendly policy between the nations.

The extraordinary precautions taken for the safety of the Czar have filled the harbor with torpedo boats, armored cruisers, dreadnaught battleships and police patrol boats. The extravagant plans for safety extend upon the shore as well.

All Police Alert.

The third section of the Russian police system, a hundred strong, are stationed throughout the town. Scotland Yard sent a full quota of men. Besides these there are agents from the intricate system of England and Russia, who are not known even to the police heads to be officials.

It was King Edward who arranged for the Czar's sub-rosa visit ashore into Cowes. The police are kept in ignorance of the plans. They do not even know when it will be made.

The Czar's children were strictly guarded while ashore to-day. The two older girls went shopping this afternoon, followed by seven policemen who kept back a great crowd anxious to see the young princesses at close range.

MRS. BLACKWELL REMINDS PUBLIC OF CZAR'S PASSPORT

Mrs. Alice Stone Blackwell says regarding the Czar's visit to England:

It is pleasant to read in the dispatches that in England the women's political leagues took part in the protest against having the British Government give an official reception to the Czar.

England has a law against the admission of "undesirable aliens," and a cartoon in a London paper represents Nicholas on the wharf, tendering a stern-looking immigration inspector his passport. It is inscribed:

Russian atrocities.
Torture of prisoners.
Flogging and violation of women.
Massacres.
Repression.
Tyranny.
Methods of barbarism.

Looking grimly at the Czar over his spectacles, the inspector says: "With a record like this, sir, I think you ought to be excluded under the Undesirable Aliens Act!"

SEEK POISONER OF YOUNG BOY

The Lowell police are bending every effort to-day to clear up the mystery surrounding the death of Edward Murray, the three-year-old son of Edward Murray of Lowell.

The boy died from the effects of corrosive sublimate, administered in large quantities on June 1 by some unknown person. Such is the finding of the inquest into the boy's death ordered by Judge Pickman of Lowell and filed at the Clerk of Court's office at East Cambridge. The police have unearthed a lot of new evidence of a damaging nature and an arrest is expected at any moment. Who it is they have under surveillance the police refuse to devulge.

ALDENS GATHER AT DUXBURY TOMORROW

To-morrow is the day that the numerous descendants of John Alden and Priscilla Molines, whose names have been made famous the world over by Longfellow's poem, "The Courtship of Myles Standish," make their annual pilgrimage to the old John Alden homestead at Duxbury. A special train is to be run from the South Station, Boston, leaving at 8:40 a. m. Trains and trolleys from other directions are expected to land from 600 to 1,000 of the Alden kindred at the old home. It must be an interesting and enjoyable experience these Pilgrim descendants have each year, as they gather to do homage to their noted and worthy ancestor.

FINDS DIAMOND IN FOWL'S CROP

LENOX, Aug. 3.—Mrs. Allen H. Thorndike of Braintree, who had a Summer place here until it was burned recently, has recovered her $1,200 diamond, which she thought she had lost forever the night of the fire. A prize winning Plymouth Rock rooster had it in its crop all the time, and when it was killed the gem fell out. All the fowl on the place have really been under suspicion ever since the fire, for the only way that Mrs. Thorndike and her husband could account for the loss of the diamond was that some of the barnyard flock had swallowed it.

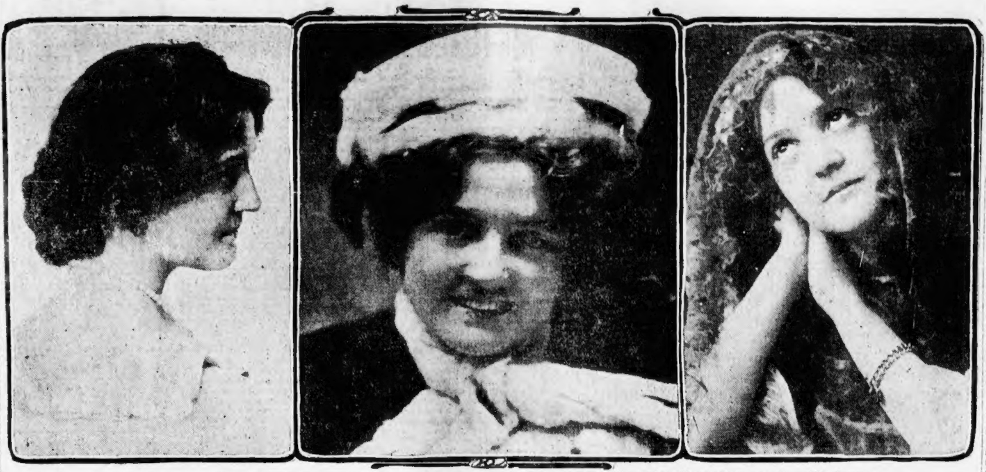
Is Picture Found in Gem Bag 'Brown of Harvard' Actress



On left and right are views of Willette Kershaw, actress; in centre is photographs found on steamship and identified by Boston woman as Miss Kershaw.

SAYS PICTURE IN JEWEL BAG IS OF ACTRESS

The woman's photograph found in the alligator bag that contained $2,775 in new bills and a lot of jewels, in the steamer City of Worcester, in New York, and which was claimed by a woman who gave the name of Mrs. Grace Livingstone Wheeler of Philadelphia, was identified to-day by a Boston friend as that of Miss Willette Kershaw, an actress.

This Boston woman friend is of the belief also that the woman who carelessly let all that money and the jewels lie in New York without claiming them for three weeks is Miss Kershaw. She said that the actress was very absent minded and it was her custom to carry large sums of money with her because she could not trust the banks in New York.

The satchel also contained an old daguerrotype of James R. Marsh, seventy years of age, of Lowell. The old gentleman said that it was probably his picture taken when he was nineteen years of age. He did not know how it got in the bag and neither could the Boston friend of Miss Kershaw explain how the two pictures were in the same bag.

On the bag were the initials "G. L. W.," which fit the name the Philadelphia woman gave and do not fit the name of the actress. But this does not bother her Boston friend.

"It would be just like her," said the woman, "to have some one else's bag. I know her well and I'm sure that the picture found in the bag is that of Miss Kershaw.

"She is twenty-four, a California girl, and was with 'Brown of Harvard' when that show was in Boston. She was married to Albert Morrison and she and he were in Pawtucket at Keith's for three years. Lately she has been with her mother in New York.

LITTLE GIRL WALKS ON TRACKS IN SLEEP

"I'm going bathing," was the answer Patrolman James Turner of the Winthrop police received at 2 o'clock in the morning when he stopped a tiny girl half asleep walking along the railroad tracks near the Ocean Spray Station, dressed in a man's overcoat and with a bathing suit on her arm. The child was Elizabeth Vera Rowe, four years old, who lives on Almond street. Officer Turner did not meet the little one any too soon, for while he was talking with her the early morning Winthrop train drew into the station.

This was Elizabeth's second experience as a sleep walker. Nearly a year ago she wandered into South Boston looking for her "daddy," as she said.

HORSES TURNED OUT OF BURNING STABLE

A dozen horses ran through Chardon street and about the West End after they were released from their stalls in the Quincy Club stable, No. 23 Chardon street, to save them from being suffocated by fire. The horses all appeared to be suffering from the effects of the smoke which had poured into their stalls from the burning hayloft. The building is a three-story brick structure and is occupied by George Grow as a boarding, livery and sale stable. It is owned by Lawrence Loring. The fire started in the hayloft and was caused by the careless use of a match. The damage was slight.

SAVES BOY'S LIFE, THEN IS DROWNED

FALL RIVER, Aug. 3.—Thomas W. Lewis of No. 910 Locust street was drowned to-day at Island Pond, Portsmouth, after he had rescued his brother-in-law, John O'Grady, a boy. Lewis leaves a widow. Lewis and O'Grady were at Portsmouth for a few days' outing. O'Grady cannot swim, but he went into the water with some corks under his arms. When out quite a distance he became frightened and lost the corks. Lewis jumped into a boat and caught O'Grady as he was going down the second time, brought him ashore and revived him. Then Lewis noticed that the boat had drifted out, and swam after it. He had nearly reached it when he called for help, and before anyone could reach him went out of sight. Matthew White, another cottager, went out and dived after Lewis, bringing back the body in a few minutes, but efforts to resuscitate failed.

SAYS THE POLICE ARE TOO "BUSY" OVER SMALL THINGS

Editor, Boston American:

I am glad to see you say something about the police department's officiousness in small things—to put it mildly—and its incompetence in matters worth while. In Dorchester there is a police captain who is so much of a czar that he won't let people inside his station house.

Two persons were very seriously injured within a stone's throw of the station and a call was sent to a doctor from Savin Hill, a mile or so away, instead of getting a nearby doctor. This Savin Hill doctor is a relative of one of the officials stationed in the Dorchester police house. He stands in.

Did you ever notice, too, the busy policemen stationed in the theatre lobbies? There is never any disorder there to call for a policeman. These officers are practically errand boys for the theatres, and they are the ones who announce what seats are on sale, etc. They enforce the petty house rules, one of them in very ungentlemanly fashion. What do they get for it? Where does the city come in?

One of these "busy" policemen stood on duty at Tremont and Boylston streets last Winter spending his time in petty affairs while a man was run down and killed by a hose wagon. It was the policeman's duty to be in the street warning people that the apparatus was coming. He wasn't. If some commuter with a transfer stood on the corner waiting for his car, however, this officer would likely have had time to tell him to "move on." L. R. M.

PAWNBROKERS ASKED TO HELP FIND JEWELRY

Superintendent of Police William H. Pierce, acting "Czar" of the Boston Police Department during Commissioner O'Meara's two weeks' vacation, has called upon every pawnbroker in the city to assist him in recovering stolen articles of which his detectives have been unable to find any trace.

The long list of articles for which the pawnbrokers are asked to watch out for were all stolen at one time—just where the superintendent refuses to disclose.

Here is the notice, printed on 3 by 6 cards, which call upon pawnbrokers and second-hand dealers to assist the police department:

LOAN MEN AND PAWNBROKERS:
PLEASE STOP IF OFFERED AND NOTIFY IF RECEIVED.

Stolen, in this city, on April 29, a gold ring set with 5 small diamonds, Tiffany setting; one gold ring with 5 large and 6 small diamonds set in platinum; one gold seal ring, letters "L. C. W.," date "March 27, 1907" on inside; a gold brooch shape of pansy, black enamel, diamond in centre, half pearls around edge; one gold brooch set with green jade stone; one gold brooch, very small crescent, 9 small pearls; 2 cuff pins marked "L. C. W."; one pair gold earrings, stud setting with large pearls; a gold horse shoe brooch, diamonds and pearls, Tiffany setting; one rose gold bracelet, hand engraved, ½ inch wide; a plain gold wire bracelet; one long Roman gold neck chain, cable pattern, one short Roman gold neck chain, same pattern; a lady's open-face Elgin watch, "L. C. W." on back case, small charm attached like a canteen; one Roman gold pencil, beaded; one Roman gold locket, "L. C. W." on back; one stickpin with river pearl and 8 small diamonds; one pin with topaz surrounded by pearls; one pin, fleur de lis, half pearls; one pin shape of knot with small diamond and one pin with small opal.

Send any information to

Superintendent of Police.

SIX IN SWIM FROM BRIDGE TO THE LIGHT

Five men and a boy started this noon in an attempt to swim from the Charlestown bridge to Boston light, eight miles distant, a feat that has never been accomplished, although many times tried.

The swimmers are Thomas Maguire of Charlestown, E. B. Bray of East Boston, Samuel Richards of South Boston, E. T. Russell of Revere, John Everett of Charlestown, the last man to try the swim, and John Campbell of Thompson's Island, a boy of fourteen.

Everett was on scratch and started on the stroke of 12. The others had a ten-minute handicap.

The conditions were good, with a slight east wind, Bray and Richards took the lead, with the boy behind the bunch. Everett kept along even with his handicap distance.

The "Hoodoo" Course.

The course from the Charlestown Bridge to Boston Light is known the world over as the "hoodoo" course, an obstacle to the greatest of swimmers and is rated among the hardest and most grelling of natatorial stunts. Annette Kellermann, the water Venus, tried the swim on July 30 of last year. She came within a mile of the Light, but there was forced to give up. Sam Mahoney attempted the swim, and he also was within a mile of the Light when he was forced to abandon the attempt. Louis Jacot of Beachmont, the winner of the famous Old Home Week race to Boston Light, in which the stars of the country's long distance swimming talent competed, only came within two miles of the Light and had to quit. But these facts have not chilled the confidence or enthusiasm of the five participants in to-day's attempt.

Two Have Already Tried.

Young swam to within a mile and a half of the Light when he made the attempt last year, and Bray has made three attempts to accomplish the feat, two last year and one this year. The friends of both are confident that their efforts will be rewarded and that they will reach the coveted goal to-day.

The swimmers lubricate their bodies with oil, which offsets to a certain degree the friction of the water. They are accompanied by physicians and a multitude of friends to encourage them during the long swim. Nourishment is given to them in the form of eggs passed to them in a glass.

HIBBARD SIGNS "JOY RIDE" BILL

Mayor Hibbard to-day signed the ordinance passed by the Board of Aldermen and Common Council providing that automobiles owned by the city shall be painted a uniform and distinctive color, and that on the side of each machine the name "City of Boston" and the department to which it is assigned shall be painted. In addition to this each machine shall be registered in the name of the city. This bill was signed by the Mayor at his home in Ashmont, and becomes a law to-day. It is thought that this ordinance will put a stop to the much-discussed "joy riding" in municipal autos. The bill was presented by Alderman Frederick J. Brand last week.

SAVES BOSTON TRAIN ON BRINK OF OPEN DRAW

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 3.—That the heart of a hero may often be under the blue shirt of the humblest workman, was never better exemplified than by the gallant deed performed by Michael O'Brien, lampman in the employ of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad.

O'Brien by his bravery and presence of mind not only saved hundreds of lives, but he undoubtedly prevented what would have been a bad accident, one of the worst the State has ever seen.

The giant locks on the roller lift bridge over the Pequonnock River, near Stratford, failed to work after the draw had been raised.

It was about time for the arival of the Boston express for New York city at 10 o'clock, and realizing the danger O'Brien ran over the tracks of the viaduct and succeeded in flagging the train just in time to avert an awful catastrophe.

The train was stopped within six feet from the open draw and the passengers who crowded out of the train found that their lives had been saved by a workman, whose hands and face were stained with oil and dirt. They started to raise a purse for him, but he took to his heels and refused it.

2 WARSHIPS HERE TO-DAY TO COAL UP

The battleships North Carolina and Montana arrived in Boston Harbor at noon to-day, the former leading and firing a salute of thirteen guns. The shore battery at the navy yard returned the salute. The North Carolina anchored between the North and South ferry courses and the Montana off the Cunard docks. Both will be here for a day or two. After coaling up they will go to Provincetown to take part in the Fall manoeuvres.

The vessels have been at the Mediterranean station for several months, where they received their war color of a dark slate hue. The gilded bow ornament has been retained on both ships, but will be removed, as a recent order strips war vessels of gilded ornaments, the only exception being the Olympia, Admiral Dewey's old flagship, which participated in the battle of Manila Bay.

JUDGE BETHEA DEAD.

STERLING, Ill., Aug. 3.—Judge Solomon H. Bethea, United States district judge, died at the residence here of his cousin, S. S. Boyer, at 12:40 o'clock this morning. Judge Bethea had been sinking rapidly for twenty-four hours prior to his death.

DEWEY! HE GOES TO LAW ONCE MORE

In one of the most remarkable briefs ever filed in this county Judge Henry S. Dewey to-day furnished the clerks of court with his exceptions in his $76,450,000 damage suit against the officers of the Good Government Association, which case was decided against him by the jury recently.

Judge Sherman, the presiding judge at the trial, is scored by Dewey for interjecting remarks during the course of the trial leading the jury to believe that the Government of God does not form a constituent part of our system of government.

Judge Dewey in one paragraph alleges that "as supplementary to the bill of exceptions, the plaintiff feels constrained to contend that the various remarks of the presiding justice (Judge Sherman), within the hearing of the jury upon the subjects of natural law and the positive law, respectively, were likely to cause the jury to infer that the Government of God was not a constituent element of the political government of Massachusetts; and that such remarks of the presiding justice, under all the circumstances of the case, were so much in error as to entitle the plaintiff to a new trial on that account."

Brief for the Judge.

Immediately after the trial Judge Dewey filed a motion for a new trial and was given until to-day to file exceptions and a brief to accompany them. The exceptions were actually placed on file to-day, but the brief, although sent to the court house, will be forwarded to Judge Sherman without being placed with the remainder of the papers, as it is merely to assist him in deciding whether or not to allow the exceptions to pass to the Supreme Court.

The exceptions cover a large number of typewriten pagers, and for the most part go over in detail the material evidence in the case and its manner of presentation at the trial. The plaintiff's exceptions are based chiefly on the court's refusal to make certain rulings, to give the jury certain instructions.

Incorporates an Essay.

In the brief, General Dewey, after a short introduction outlining the case, incorporates his own little essay on "Suggestions on the Work of a Police Court Justice."

He sets forth that he believes that his work as a police court justice and his reputation in that connection had a very large bearing on the case, and for that reason his essay on the work says all that he wishes to say in the brief. As a matter of fact, the brief consists of the brief introduction and the essay, complete.

In the essay General Dewey quotes freely from Plato, Justinian, and their contemporaries, down through the centuries to Emerson's philosophy and Daniel Webster's speeches in Congress.

Judge Sherman is in the country preparatory to making a trip to Europe whence he will not return until next November. It is probable that he will allow or disallow the exceptions through a letter to the clerk of the Superior Civil Court.

BOSTON WOOL BROKER IS GIVEN TWO YEARS

Henry P. Garrity, a wool broker living on Eustis street, Roxbury, until recently, was sentenced to two years in the House of Correction by Judge Bell in the Superior Criminal Court after pleading guilty to an indictment charging him with receiving stolen leather to the amount of $4,000.

MRS. BESANT SAYS CHRIST WILL APPEAR

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—Christ is about to enter a new physical body, probably a Western one, and make himself known to this world again, said Mrs. Annie Besant, president of the Theosophical Society, at the Carnegie Lyceum. She hoped that when He comes again mankind will suffer him to remain recognizably in sight longer than three years, the term allowed him the last time he was here.

This news the head of the organization founded by Helena Petrovna Blavatsky in New York imparted to the 200 faithful—the faithful in this sense not including the adherents of the Purple Mother of Point Loma, Cal.—and some newspaper men last night.

The general public was not admitted. Many who applied at the door were turned back with the salving information that everybody would be admitted to the lecture on Wednesday night at Masonic Hall.

White Dress and Lotus Buds.

Mrs. Besant was dressed in a loose-flowing dress of white. Beside her was a vase full of lotus buds, emblematic of the White Lotus Mother herself, reverentially spoken of by the leader and her disciples as H. P. B. Perhaps three-fourths of the audience were women.

When Mrs. Besant had concluded her lecture she asked if there were questioners. There were.

"I notice you speak of the coming Christ always as 'he,'" went on a young woman, in acid tones. "Why should the Christ not be a 'she'?"

Most indulgently Mrs. Besant explained that she used "he" in a neutral sense; that she could not keep saying all the time "he or she," and that Christ, for all she knew, might next time enter that body we call feminine, but that, taking things all around, he would most likely find the body called male more convenient for his good work while here. She mentioned that Hermes, Orpheus, Zoroaster and Christ were all the same, though in different physical bodies.

Start of All Souls.

"Inasmuch," began one young man, "as all souls started from the same soul stuff at the same time, and inasmuch as they all have the same will power, why is it that some have advanced further than others?"

He sat down, apparently quite satisfied with himself.

"Wrong as to the first inasmuch," answered Mrs. Besant. "They didn't all start at the same time from the same soul stuff. Some started millions of years before others."

"Is Christ in incarnation now?" was the next question.

"He is. He is always in some body. When He comes next to be known He will, I think, choose some new body. It may be that this body will have been already trained for some time by another. Christ will inhabit it. Oh, yes," she hurried to say, holding up a hand as a militant suffragette from the Columbia Summer School started to rise, "yes, He may choose a woman's body."

"Will he come in this generation?" Mrs. Besant was asked.

"Ah, that I will not attempt to answer. Ask an astrologer what he thinks."

"Do you think he will come soon?" a woman asked.

When the Christ Comes.

"Yes, he will come soon. There are signs that the Supreme Teacher, as he has always been known, will come to earth shortly. Let us hope that he will be allowed to stay among us longer than three years. Maybe some of you think you would not have crucified him in the old Judean days. Try to place yourself in that environment, and you will see that you most likely would have been as those who did want to kill Him then.

"How shall we know him, you ask? Some of us, who feel him now, will know him intuitively. Others who have not reached that level must cultivate themselves. Never try to justify yourself when accused of anything. Make no defence. Bow your head and let the accusations be made. Be patient, be tolerant, and do not argue. And in time you will be able to feel his presence intuitively, maybe by the time he comes next again."

Then a young man with a quavery voice wanted to know if vegetarianism would be universally adopted in the next following sub-race of the coming root-race.

"I know not," answered Mrs. Besant, "but it is growing. I have not eaten flesh in years. I had the gout and banished it."

One of the faithful, a young man, had got tangled in his root-races and sub-races, and so he asked Mrs. Besant just where we are at now anyhow. Smiling benignly, she told him that we are now attaining the zenith of the fifth sub-race of the fifth root-race, and were tottering, as it were, upon the brink of the sixth sub-race, which was really very close to the stupendous sweep of the sixth root-race.

"Thank you, so much," murmured the young man.

A Review of Ages.

In the beginning of her lecture Mrs. Besant reviewed swiftly the trillions of years making up the root races. As has been said before, but is repeated for the sake of complete clearness, the world is now in the fifth root-race. The fourth included the Greek and Roman days and the spread of the peoples around the basin of the Mediterranean and up into Ireland and Scotland. That was the Celtic age, the emotional age.

Then came the fifth root race, which began with the rise of the Teutons, which is still on us. This is the intellectual age, when the mind controls the emotions. Next will come the sixth root race, in which Mrs. Besant expects spirit to conquer intellect.

But there were some things the world in this root race has lost since the days of the fourth root race, the speaker went on, and these it must pick up again before it can go on with the sixth root race. One of these is conquest of the air. In India ten thousand years ago airships were used to fight, whereas now the world is just beginning to learn their use again.

Moreover, Mrs. Besant went on, while we are moving swiftly on to the sixth sub-race, which is a good thing, there is some danger that must be guarded against. One of the evidences of the conquest of spirit is the increased sensitiveness of the present physical body, enabling the possessors of the more sensitive to see things other people can't, for instance.

That is due to a more delicate nervous system. But the physical body, generally speaking, is developing toward the sixth sub-race faster than the environment. Hence, the coming babies must be removed from the noise and the din of the cities, or madhouses will increase an hundredfold, and the race may be destroyed.

Ignores Mrs. Tingley.

Mrs. Besant when asked at her apartments in the Park Avenue Hotel whether she intended investigating the opposition led against her in this country by the Point Loma colony of which Mrs Tingley is the leader, smiled and said that she knew of no particular trouble between her and Mrs. Tingley.

"Of course, Mrs. Tingley withdrew from the Theosophical Society and has been working outside our society, but if she is trying to harm us by adverse criticisms I do not think it right for us of the higher life to stoop to answer her charges and get into a controversy," said Mrs. Besant.

Mrs. Annie Besant, in Her White Robes

MRS. BESANT WILL LECTURE IN BOSTON END OF NEXT MONTH

Mrs. Annie Besant of India, head of the International Theosophist Society, American headquarters at No. 687 Boylston street, this city, is to come here on September 29. She is to deliver four public lectures in Jordan hall on September 30, October 1, 2 and 3.

The local committee, under the charge of Mrs. Guay, are making extensive preparations for the entertainment of Mrs. Besant. So many inquiries have reached them about her forthcoming lectures that it is possible a larger hall than Jordan Hall will be hired for the course.

MALONEY HELD FOR CAR DEATH

Lawrence J. Maloney of No. 230 Cypress street, Brookline, was arraigned in the Roxbury court to-day, charged with manslaughter in the death of Stephen Darcey of No. 17 Dalton street, Back Bay. He waived examination and his counsel, Frank Costello, asked for a continuance to Friday, the 13th, which was granted. Bail was fixed at $3,000 which Maloney produced. Patrolman Carr of the Roxbury station appeared as the complainant.

Darcey was found on the car track in Huntington avenue Saturday night by Carr. He was unconscious, and the next day died in the City Hospital from a fractured skull. The prosecution says that Maloney and Darcey were passengers on a car, that they had been drinking and in a fight which came out of an argument Maloney struck Darcey with such force as to knock him from the car while it was in motion. The conductor's report to the Elevated company gave the police the clew.

HADLEY LAUDS GEN. HOOKER

HADLEY, Aug. 3.—A firemen's muster, and the dedication of the new buildings of Hopkins Academy, one of the most famous institutions of this historic old town, were the most noteworthy events in to-day's celebration of the 250th anniversary of the settlement of Hadley. The observance was begun Sunday and will be concluded with historical tableaux and pageantry to-morrow.

Reunions continue to be the rule, the most prominent of which, planned for to-day, was that of the Hooker Association, which will meet to-night to honor the memory of the famous native of this place, Major-General Joseph Hooker.

Judge Henry Stockbridge of Baltimore, formerly president-general of the national association of the Sons of the American Revolution; Rev. Dr. A. Chamble, who was a member of a New Jersey regiment in the Civil War, and Captain Isaac P. Gregg of Boston, a member of General Hooker's staff when Hooker was commander of the army of the Potomac, will be the leading speakers at the Hooker exercises, which will be held in a big tent on West street.

GLOUCESTER IS READY FOR BIG FETE DAY

GLOUCESTER, Aug. 3.—Hundreds of visitors have already arrived in the city for the big celebration and pageant which will mark "Gloucester Day," the city's greatest festival. Preparations are completed and the list of events shows enough of the spectacular to please the largest crowds.

The formal celebration opens to-night with the illumination of warships, yachts and other craft in the harbor and a big searchlight display by the battleship fleet.

The big celebration, however, does not open until to-morrow with the parade of marines and sailors from the fleet and a trades and civic procession. This parade is scheduled to start at 1:30 p. m., marching through the principal streets. Charles A. Russell will be chief marshal. Governor Draper will review the procession.

Chorus of 800 Children.

In the evening the tableau, "The Canterbury Pilgrims," is to be produced at Stage Fort Park by the Coburn players. Interspersed with this will be a pageant of historical character. A chorus of 800 school children and 150 adults will sing.

The lower part of Stage Fort is a natural ampitheatre. On the beach there has been erected a large stage and settings, upon which "The Canterbury Pilgrims" and the pageant will be produced. Seats for the 200 boxes or enclosures, accommodating six persons each, have all been sold. There are seats provided besides for 20,000 persons.

It is stated that the net receipts of the festival will be used as a nucleus to build a reproduction of the first house erected on Stage Fort by Dorchester colony in 1624.

The official calendar of Gloucester Day events is as follows:

Tuesday night—Grand illumination of the warships, yachts and crafts in the harbor, with searchlight display by the former.

Wednesday—Noon, luncheon at City Hall for invited guests and members of committee; 1:30 p. m., parade will get in motion; 3 p. m., review of parade by Governor and guests at City Hall; 3:10 p. m., review of parade by chief marshal in old Town Hall square; 7:30 p. m., performance commences at the Stage Fort Park; 10:30 p. m., play and pageant concluded.

Prominent People Judges.

A novel feature of the pageant is the offering of valuable prizes to the various organizations and individuals who are to take part in it, and for this purpose the committee has provided costly trophies in the nature of silver cups and shields. The judges are:

Miss Edith Mathison of London, Charles Rann Kennedy of London, author and playwright; Mrs. John L. Gardner, Mrs. George Tyson of Boston, Professor A. Platt Andrew of Washington, Mrs. Cecilia Beaux, the portrait painter; Miss Elizabeth Hammond, sister of John Hays Hammond; Arthur Fairbanks, director of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts; Miss Viola Allen, Professor W. H. Schofield of Harvard, Charles Grafy of Philadelphia, sculptor; Edmund C. Tarbell, the painter; Robert Underwood Johnson of New York, author and editor; President Frederick W. Hamilton of Tufts College, John E. D. Task, director of the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts; Mrs. Adelaide Cole Chase, portrait painter; Henry C. Walker, the mural painter; Miss Margaret Anglin, Elliot Snow, naval constructor, U. S. N., Augustus Frazen, the painter; Madison Cawern of Louisville, Mrs. Walter Damrosch, Louis Even Shipman, author and playwright; Edward R. Redfield, member of the National Academy of Design.

NEW SHOCKS OVER MEXICO

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 3.—A dispatch received from Acapulco states that the earthquake shocks continue. All buildings which remain standing are untenable, a heavy rain is falling, and many are suffering from want of shelter. The tents and temporary shacks in which the people are living are pronounced miserably inadequate. Citizens are acting as special policemen. There has been some looting. Food, clothing and medicine are urgently needed, but thus far no relief step has been taken by the federal government.

It is stated at the War Department that no request for national aid has been received. It is said relief measures are held up through red tape. The appeal for federal aid must first be made to Governor Flores of Guerrero, who in turn will transmit it to President Diaz.

The people of Acapulco have heard that the United States has offered to send food and supplies on a warship, and are overjoyed at the prospect. The federal authorities here deny any knowledge of outside relief.

MILK FAMINE THREATENED IN GREATER CITY

There is a serious shortage in the milk supply for Greater Boston. A famine in milk is threatened. This condition is caused mainly by poor pasturage. Extra consumption makes the shortage felt all the more. Unless matters improve the regular Winter increase in prices to the distributor and to the consumer, which usually goes into effect October 1, may be made September 1.

The large milk depots are in fair condition regarding supply at present. They are furnishing their customers. The small dealers are unable to get all the milk they need. Sometimes they are obliged to turn customers away.

Manager W. A. Graustein, of the Boston Dairy Company, acknowledged to-day that there was a shortage, but stated that his concern was filling orders and could do so for some time. He also favored the raising of the price of milk on September 1.

"The increased demand for milk as a food during the very warm weather and the shortage in the supply, owing to poor pasturage has made conditions very serious for the small dealers especially," said Graustein. "Our concern is filling orders and will continue to do so, but many of the small contractors are unable to supply their customers.

Heavy Rains Needed.

"Conditions are becoming serious and nothing but good rains will prevent a famine. While as far as I know no attempt has been made to increase the price of milk, I feel that it will be necessary to raise the price on September 1 instead of a month later, as is the general rule."

"The intense heat and the increased demand for milk has placed the dealers face to face with a prospective famine which can be prevented only by heavy rains," said Manager J. K. Whiting of the C. Brigham Company of Cambridge. "During hot weather like the present there is a strong increased demand for milk as food. Instead of the customary meals many people call for a bowl of bread and milk. This calls for increased orders from restaurants with less profits. So far, we have been able to supply all orders, but have been helped by the fact that many customers are out of the city during the Summer.

"This increased demand coming at a time when all pasturage is parched and brown, resulting in a shrinkage of about 20 per cent. of the supply, makes the condition serious. Nothing but heavy rains of many days will turn the grass green and unless these come soon there is a possibility of a famine."

Big Demand for Milk.

An official of H. P. Hood & Sons said: "There is a general shortage of milk and unless conditions change within a very few days there will be a famine. So far we have been able to take care of all our trade and have not considered increasing the price." some time."

NEWPORT COW IS NEGLECTFUL; MILK PUNCH MAY SUFFER

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 3.—Another of the many woes which afflict those accursed with great wealth faces Newport in the prospect of a milk famine.

The advent, later this week, of the New York Yacht Club in Newport Harbor adds to the misery of the situation.

The yachtsmen do not need the milk to sail their yachts in. But they do need innumerable milk punches, and—it is whispered—milk to bathe in.

The Newport cow is neglecting her duty in scandalous manner. It is feared that the shortage, owing to poor pasturage, will make the dealers curtail their regular supply to wealthy customers. There may be enough for the babies of the predatory rich; but, what is far more serious, there may not be enough for the Casino and club refrigerators and for the flotilla of yachts.

What the cottagers, and especially the incoming yachtsmen, will do without milk for punch is not known yet. Milk is necessary for punches, and punches are necessary for yachtsmen, according to all precedent.

TAFT PARDONS B.W. COMSTOCK

PROVIDENCE, Aug. 3.—President Taft to-day ordered the pardon of Benjamin W. Comstock, a merchant and prominent socially, who was sent to jail for a year and ordered to pay a fine of $2,500 for conspiracy in concealing his assets from his creditors in bankruptcy. Comstock had served about two months of the sentence. His release was brought about through the efforts of District Attorney Wilson.

To-day Andrew Wilcox, warden of the State Prison, received this telegram:

Washington, D. C., Aug. 2, 1909.
Warden, R. I. State Prison, Howard, R. I.

The President has commuted the sentence of Benjamin W. Comstock, to expire immediately. You may release him immediately. Formal warrant to you by mail.

(Signed) Wickersham.

Warden Wilcox sent this reply:

Hon. George W. Wickersham, Attorney General, Washington:

Your telegram in re Comstock received. Will release him this A. M.

POLICEMAN SAVES 2; IS HIMSELF HURT

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—Peter Brenner, an aged man, and his wife Theresa, sixty-five years old, were rescued early to-day in a fire at No. 799 Flushing avenue, Brooklyn, by Policeman Philip Bernstein of the Lee avenue station. He broke into the burning house through a second story window, climbing over a wooden awning. He found Brenner and his wife unconscious from smoke. The policeman carried the woman down the stairs and unlocked the door and got to the street. Then he went back for the husband, and later entered a third time to seek other victims. He was felled by a skylight and was rescued by the firemen.

FIELD PERSONAL PROPERTY $12,500,000

CHICAGO, Aug. 3.—The personal property assessment against the executors and trustees of the estate of the late Marshall Field has been increased from $10,000,000 to $12,500,000 by the Chicago Board of Review. This is the greatest single accumulation of personal property on which taxes are paid in this country.

MOONLIGHT SAIL OF SPANISH WAR VETS

For the maintenance of a free labor registry at their department headquarters in the Old Courthouse and to help other causes, the United Spanish War Veterans will have a moonlight excursion at 8 o'clock Friday evening, August 6, from Otis wharf, returning to the city at 11 o'clock. The steamer Governor Andrew has been chartered. Arrangements have been made for the accommodation of women and children.

K. OF C. OPEN CONVENTION AT MOBILE

MOBILE, Ala., Aug. 3.—The twenty-seventh annual convention of the Knights of Columbus was opened here to-day with mass in St. Mary's Church. Several hundred delegates, representing all parts of the United States, attended. A feature of the services was the singing of the St. Louis choral choir.

Following the services at the church, the delegates assembled in the Lyric Theatre, where they were welcomed on behalf of the city by Mayor P. J. Lyons. Past State Deputy M. Mahorner welcomed the delegates on behalf of the State organization. Supreme Knight Edward L. Hearn of New Haven, Ct., responded for the national body.

After the meeting in the theatre the delegates went to the New Battle House, where the convention was formally opened by Supreme Knight Hearn. Committees were then appointed to conduct the business of the organization. They will submit their reports to-morrow.

The reports of the officers of the organization showed big gains in membership in all parts of the country, particularly in Massachusetts. Supreme Knight Hearn offered a number of suggestions in his report. He regretted his inability to serve for another term and thanked the officers and members for their hearty co-operation in making the duties of his office pleasant.

The Massachusetts delegation is taking a prominent part in the deliberations of the convention. State Deputy William J. O'Brien is prominently mentioned as a candidate for Supreme Knight. Past State Deputy Daniel F. Buckley is also being boomed.

CLOISTER FOR 3 RICH GIRLS

CINCINNATI, Aug. 3.—The three daughters of Milton Young, a noted Kentucky turfman and worth, it is said, several millions of dollars in realty and mining property in his State, have left their home in Lexington to become nuns. They are now in the Sacred Heart Convent at Albany, N. Y.

They left their home to take their veils voluntarily.

The first one to go was Miss Marie Young, who entered that convent two years ago. She wrote her sisters and advised them to come. Though they had all the money they could wish for and though there were many suitors for the hand of each one, the two girls have gone to the cloistered life and will remain there, say their parents. It so happens that Mrs. Young, the mother, is a relative of Archbishop Spalding and he obtained the places for the girls, one of whom, Miss Spalding Young, is named for him. The other is Miss Allen Young.

NATICK MAN FOR MELROSE SCHOOLS

Out of a list of thirty-four candidates for the position of superintendent of the Melrose schools, Alfred L. Barbour, superintendent of the schools at Natick, was unanimously appointed to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Fred H. Nickerson, who resigned to become superintendent of the Medford schools at a higher salary. Mr. Barbour has been superintendent of the Natick schools nine years. He graduated from Brown University, and then entered Harvard, and later the Larsen Manual Training School, getting degrees from both places.

BOSTON MEN CLAIM LIENS ON SS. YALE

PORTLAND, Me., Aug. 3.—In the District Court before Judge Putnam the petitions of the Berwind & White Coal Company of New York and the American Trust Company of Boston against the Metropolitan Steamship Company on a declaration of foreclosure and sale which had previously been ordered were heard. Several prominent lawyers from New York and Boston were in attendance. No date has been set for the sale of the property.

MRS. SAGE TO BUILD COTTAGES FOR POOR

Mrs. Russell Sage is devoting much time and money to philanthropic work of a practical character. She intends to build many cottages near her home at Cedarhurst, L. I., to be let to working people at nominal rentals. It is stated that $12 per month will be the maximum. Each cottage will contain modern improvements, and will be of frame, two stories in height. The contract has been let for their construction, it is stated, and they will be completed before cold weather.

DOCTOR TELLS HOW TO REST TIRED SENSES

Dr. Paul W. Goldsburg of Boston describes in the Medical and Surgical Journal the "Principles of Therapeutics by Sense Culture," discusses the way in which the strain of work or pleasure on one sense may be offset by the exercise of another or by a change in the use to which it is put. From this point of view he analyzes such matters as afternoon teas and comic opera. He says in part:

"The eye may be rested after protracted use by merely closing the lid. A photographer who does a good deal of delicate and trying work of retouching negatives tells me that the simple habit of closing her eyes when they begin to feel tired from the work has helped her to keep them in very good condition. But further rest may also be obtained by the playing off, so to speak, of one sense against another by diverting activity.

Music As a Relief.

"If we stand and watch a circus parade for any length of time our eyes soon become tired by the 'sights and features,' but the bursts of music from the bands, by stimulating the ear, relieve and freshen the eye. Musical comedy of the present day presents an excellent opportunity to show how the tax upon the eye by the costumes, colorings and lights is relieved by the interpolation of music and songs. In other words, opera, light or heavy, is a complex of song and color harmonies so adjusted as to balance admirably the strain of stimulation on the senses of sight and hearing.

"It does not require a very sensitive organism to be fatigued by the chatter and clatter of an afternoon 'tea,' by the sound of many voices all pitched in the strained keys of excitement. But the refreshments served on all such occasions perform a useful function. They relieve the tax on the ear by exercising the sense of taste as well as the muscles of digestion.

Unusual Sight.

"Drivers and motormen, as a class, have unusual sight. The demand of exercising the eye in those occupations by change of focus seems to have a tonic effect. Looking from one object to another not only affords muscular but sensory exercise. A change of form affords a change of stimulation for the retina.

"The successful advertiser appreciates the practical psychology of form and color. The picture postal affords a mental excursion via graphic color illustrations. The growth of this fad and the picture shows emphasize the demands for such lines of stimulation, which, after all, have some educational value. These cheap picture and song halls have diverted pennies and nickels from the saloons, so as to lessen the drink traffic in some localities. The science of diversion as well as physical culture must be incorporated in the program of physiological therapeutics.

"Rest and stimulation are the principal lines of therapeutic procedure and have been employed for general and local disorders by various measures."

OLDEST OFFICE BOY 70 YEARS A MASON

TRENTON, Aug. 3.—Samuel Brackett, aged ninety, is still receiving the congratulations of his friends on the fact that for seventy years he has been a Mason and an Odd Fellow. He is one of the oldest lodge men in this State, and for seventy years was in the employ of the management of the anvil works which Mrs. Clark Fisher now conducts. In fact, for all that time Mr. Brackett had been the "office boy" of the institution. Last birthday Mrs. Fisher pensioned him and the fact of her pensioning the "oldest office boy in the world" was sent broadcast.

THIEVES TAKE VAN AND TEAM HORSES

The Cambridge police to-day sent out warnings to the police of surrounding towns and cities to be on the watch for a red moving van with the name of Moore & Co. on it and drawn by two horses, a bay and a gray, which were stolen in a daring break. Some time during the night the horse thieves entered the stable of Moore & Co. in Cambridgeport and drove away with the property, valued at $1,400.

SHAW'S AUTO STOPPED.

BIDDEFORD, Me., Aug. 3.—Henry Cluett, chauffeur for Senator James F. Shaw of Boston, was arrested for exceeding the speed limit on Elm street, and arraigned before Judge Cleaves. He pleaded guilty. His fine was remitted and he was ordered to pay the costs of court, amounting to $16.

GREATEST TRUST YET GIVEN WOMAN; CHARGE OF CHICAGO SCHOOLS

For the first time in the history of educational affairs a woman, Mrs. Ella Flagg Young, has been made superintendent of schools in a large city. She has just taken charge of the entire public school system of Chicago. For years she was principal of the Chicago Normal School. The position of superintendent carries a salary of $10,000 a year.

Boston is interested in this elevation of a woman to a position almost national because of its importance, not alone because of the departure made by the Chicago Board of Education in rejecting the names of several men, all well known in the field of educational work, but especially for the fact that Stratton D. Brooks, superintendent of schools in this city, was prominently mentioned for the place given to Mrs. Young.

Named After Long Session.

The Chicago board selected Mrs. Young after a four-hour secret session, which ended in her being chosen unanimously for a place never filled by a woman before. To show the profound respect in which this woman is held the board, immediately after selecting her as head of all the public schools, elected John D. Shoop, a candidate for the superintendency, as assistant superintendent. Mrs. Young had strongly advised that this office be created.

The Chicago board also made a third innovation when it departed from the time-honored rule of never taking final action on any important question in a secret executive session.

When the contest for the superintendency narrowed down to the actual time for selecting a successor to former Superintendent Cooley, there were but six avowed applicants: Mrs. Young, John D. Shoop, William J. Bartholf, James E. Armstrong, George C. Howland and E. L. C. Morse.

Rigid Test for All.

Each one of the six was subjected to a rigid fire of questions on all important phases of the public school question, especially as they applied to Chicago.

Here are some of the reforms which the new Superintendent of Schools for Chicago declared she intended to institute:

To give much more time and attention to the teaching of reading, writing and arithmetic in the elementary schools.

To stop the changes in the writing system from "vertical" to "slant" and back again by teaching a "fifteen degree" departure from vertical.

To modify the methods of teaching to meet the present industrial conditions, completely revising the present manual training system to teach pupils practical things. She will teach art of a practical nature and not include such designs as lilies of the valley on bootjacks.

To push work on a new school in which teachers will be taught industrial arts in connection with the present Normal School training.

To assist the Teachers' Federation in obtaining other reforms beneficial to teachers.

To induce the Board of Education to increase the salaries of teachers as soon as it can get the necessary funds.

The unify the entire school system by instituting a "city plan," which will mean the elimination of methods prevailing in schools which came into the city when such townships as Jefferson, Cicero and South Chicago were annexed.

New Chief Small Woman.

By placing Mrs. Young in the $10,000 place made vacant through the resignation of Superintendent Cooley, the Board of Education has given her the most responsible position ever held by any woman in the State of Illinois. The new superintendent of Chicago's great school system is small and appears to be frail. She has bright, quick eyes and a pleasant smile.

When she started to teach school she received $25 a month. Now she has a position paying more than $800 a month. Mrs. Young began to teach school in Chicago nearly forty years ago. She served as an ordinary teacher in the ranks for nearly ten years, when she was made a district superintendent, so great was her executive ability.

Then she was chosen to be a lecturer on pedagogy at the School of Education at the University of Chicago. In 1903 Mrs. Young was elected head of the Chicago Normal School. She has discharged the duties of this important position carefully and capably to the present time.

When she received her notice of election to the city superintendency, while plainly pleased, she declared that she was prepared to assume her new duties on the following day so Saturday saw her installed in office.

Mrs. Young Outlines Plans.

"I propose to do what ever I can to modify our school system to meet the requirements of our times," says Mrs. Young. "This is an industrial age and we should teach accordingly.

"For instance, it is noticed to-day that whenever there are great changes in factory machinery—a new invention comes in, let us suppose—the old hands find it practically impossible to adjust themselves to the new conditions and finally drop out altogether.

"Now, if we train the hand when the mind is plastic—while the child is young, we will remedy this condition. If properly taught in the manual training school a boy will not merely be able to do one thing. If he finds it necessary to do several things, he will be equal to the task. That is what our manual training schools should do for the boy.

"Along this line a new building is to be constructed in conjunction with the Chicago Normal School. At this new school teachers will be trained in the industrial arts. At present teachers have been trained only along academic lines. Now they are to be drilled in the things which they will actually teach."

SUTTON DEATH HEARING GOES ON THURSDAY

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—The Navy Department expects that the Sutton court of inquiry will resume its sessions at Annapolis on Thursday.

Rear Admiral Schroeder has been telegraphed at Provincetown to advise Lieutenant Utley and Surgeon Cook to proceed to Annapolis on their arrival at Provincetown. The Bureau of Navigation has announced that the North Carolina, on which are Utley and Cook, will arrive at Provincetown to-day.

Lieutenant Utley is now one of the defendants by reason of the letter of Mrs. Sutton, which was introduced in evidence by the Judge Advocate of the Court of Inquiry, is being held by the court that as Mrs. Sutton did not specify which lieutenant she accused, her letter must accuse all of them.

In a brief statement Henry E. Davis declared his intention to go on with the case. At the invitation of the Judge Advocate-General of the Navy Mr. Davis went to the Navy Department and held a conference with the Judge Advocate and Assistant Secretary Winthrop.

He was assured that the action of the court in making Mrs. Sutton the complainant and the young officers who were with Sutton when he died defendants in no wise disturbed the functions of the court nor changed the methods of procedure.

H. CLAY PIERCE AND BRIDE OFF TO CONTINENT

LONDON, Aug. 3.—Not more than a dozen persons witnessed the marriage of Henry Clay Pierce, the wealthy American oil man of New York and St. Louis, to Mrs. Virginia Prickett Burrowes of Paris and New York, and before that of Edwardsville, Ill. They were married by special license at St. George's, Hanover Square. St. George's is the church of fashionable weddings, but yesterday was a bank holiday and the West End was totally deserted, so that the bridegroom's desire for privacy was satisfied to the utmost.

The chancel was handsomely decorated with flowers of rare varieties, and the bride carried a bouquet of odontoglossom, orchids, and white heather which alone cost the groom 200 guineas, of $1,000. The bride wore a dress of gray crepe de chine and a big hat with white feathers. Henry R. Anderson, wearing an unconventional lounge suit, gave the bride away, and she was attended by her daughter, Virginia Burrowes, a tall young woman apparently about twenty-five years old.

Baron Gino de Morpurgo, who is well known to American habitues of fashionable hotels in London and Paris, acted as best man, and during the service a special selection of music was rendered by the organist of the church.

When the newly-married couple had signed the register the rector of the church, who had officiated, proudly showed them the entry recording the wedding of Theodore Roosevelt in this same church.

Mr. Pierce described himself on the register as a financier of full age, and the bride put herself down as a widow of full age, daughter of William Russell Prickett, banker. Mr. and Mrs. Pierce went to the continent to pass their honeymoon.

PROHIBITION CUTS REVENUE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—Uncle Sam's pocketbook suffered a big shrinkage because of the prohibition wave during the fiscal year ended June 30 last, during which period there was a decrease of $5,290,773 in whiskey tax receipts as shown by the preliminary report of the Internal Revenue Bureau just issued.

Whiskey tax collections last year were $134,886,034 as against $140,158,807 for the preceding year. The receipts on beer and other fermented liquors amounted to $57,456,411, a decrease of $2,351,205 compared with 1908.

Internal revenue receipts from all sources were $246,212,719. The government expended approximately $4,970,000 in collecting its internal revenue. Illinois led the country with $43,441,771 internal revenue paid into the treasury. Other States in which the tax exceeded $20,000,000 were Kentucky, Indiana, Pennsylvania and New York.

ALL READY FOR TAFT'S LEAVING

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—The famous Roosevelt tennis court is ploughed up in preparation as a site for the new $40,000 addition to the executive offices of the President. Mr. Taft had no use for a tennis court; it wasn't big enough for golf links.

At the other end of the White House painters were burning the paint off the east extension, to replace it with a fresh coating.

Inside the White House most of the furniture has been draped for the summer and everything is in readiness for the President's departure. He expects to leave for Beverly immediately after signing the tariff bill.

More details of his Western itinerary were planned to-day. Mr. Taft promised Senator Flint that he would stop at Redlands, Riverside and Pasadena while in California, if it could be arranged. To Representatives Chapman and Rodenberg of Illinois he promised to stop at East St. Louis and Cairo when he takes the trip down the river from St. Louis. Next Representative Ransdell of Louisiana asked him to stop at Monroe, in his State.

MINISTER GETS $14 SALARY IN 12 WEEKS

CINCINNATI, Aug. 3.—Rev. J. Spenser Smith, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church of Westchester, O., in a sermon denouncing the "pillars of his church," told from the pulpit a story of privation and want that amazed his hearers. "Because of the way you have treated me, for days at a time I have had to live on butterless bread and water. I was forced to go eight weeks without receiving a penny from you. For three days, when my wife lay in bed with her newly born babe, I went without a bite so that she might get nourishment to keep her child alive with the bread and tea, all we had left. In twelve weeks I received but $14 from you on my salary, long overdue."

TWAIN'S HEART BAD FROM TOO MUCH SMOKING

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—In a semi-jocose interview at his home near Redding, Ct., Mark Twain let it become known that he is combating heart disease, brought about by his many years of excessive smoking.

A reporter went to see if the veteran humorist had anything to say in reply to Dr. James L. Tracy's assertion (in "American Medicine) that Twain was below par morally because he smoked a cigar at Oxford, England, while waiting the conferment of a degree. Flannel-clad Mark was sitting in an easy chair, puffing at a pipe, when the interviewer hailed him.

"This is the third of the four smokes that I'm allowed eacy twenty-four hours now-a-days," he explained, without ever removing his pipe. "My doctor allows me only four smokes a day, where I have been all my life in the habit of taking at least forty. I cannot walk three hundred yards or take an extra smoke or two but I pay the penalty with a severe pain in my heart. When I consider that I lived almost seventy-four years in as good health as any man, and smoked forty times a day without injury, as I thought, only to be cut down now to four smokes a day, I am in no position to dispute anything which Dr. Tracy, my critic, may say regarding smoking."

Twain Is Amused.

The humorist said he had not seen the article in question, nor even heard of it, until the reporter told him some of the things which Dr. Tracy had said about him. He seemed to be amused by some of Dr. Tracy's caustic comments upon the moral degeneracy of the smoker.

"But I don't mind what they say about me," he said. "I'm used to it, and through it all I've kept my moral character fairly clean."

Regarding the Oxford incident, the doctor seems to have had a mistaken notion. I was not the chief criminal, and I was not even responsible for the occurrence. While we were awaiting our turn in the ceremonies those of us who came up for letters, and a few who were there for science degrees, had to wait perhaps an hour.

Forbidden by the Rules.

"I inquired if smoking was allowed. Mr. Kipling said that it was forbidden by the rules. Then some one of our group of four said that we could go down in an out-of-the-way corridor, and have a smoke. I think it was Sir Edward Ramsay who said that, but I would not accuse any one wilfully. We went down there and had our smoke and no one said anything to us."

"Dr. Tracy is worried about my moral character, is he?" said the humorist.

"Well, tobacco is responsible for a good deal physically, but I don't think that it can ruin a moral character."

KNIFE IS ONLY CANCER CURE

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—"I have no hesitancy in pronouncing cancer the worst physical scourge with which we have to contend to-day. Cancer is far more to be dreaded than tuberculosis, for, although the death rate from cancer is not yet as great as that from tuberculosis, it is steadily on the increase, while the great white plague has been partially conquered by medical experimentation, and is on the decrease."

This statement was made by Edward Milton Foote, M. D., one of the best-known cancer specialists in the United States and consulting physician to the New York Skin

Asked what is being done to check the ravages of this dread disease, Dr. Foote hesitated a moment and then replied:

"We are doing absolutely nothing. By that I don't mean that we are not experimenting, for we are, and that most diligently. But what I mean is that we have as yet discovered no cure for cancer except the knife. That, to my mind, is far preferable to the X-Ray treatment, which I have found to be exceedingly fickle."

WATERWAYS MEN EAGER FOR JUNKET

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—About twenty prominent persons in Congress, the army and Washington society are impatiently waiting for the Tariff bill to pass so that they may enjoy Senator Burton's big joy ride through Europe. It is the Waterways Commission created by the last Congress, and is booked to sail from New York next Saturday or the following Tuesday. It is to examine into the question of waterways in the United States, observe the solution of some of the problems in Europe and elsewhere and report to Congress by January 1, 1910. Senator Burton is the chairman of the commission, Senator Gallinger vice-chairman, and Senators Piles, Smith, Simmons, Lorimer and Clark of Arkansas and Representatives Alexander of New York, Stevens, Wagner, Sparkman and Moon are the other members.

BOSTON TO BE ATTACKED AUGUST 14

August 14, 1909, will probably go down in the history of the State Militia as the date of the invasion of Boston by the "red" army. Plans for the great war games, which begin the last of next week, have been far enough advanced to indicate that the opening attack will take place on that day.

There will be no effort on the part of the "blue" army, the army of defence, to prevent the "reds" from landing. They will come in regular army transports from New York harbor and will probably land in the early morning. The exact landing place will be kept a secret. There may be several landing spots, and to Brigadier General William A. Pew and his "blue" army will fall the task of locating the invaders, preventing them from marching on to Boston and administering a defeat.

The two armies, numbering more than 16,000 men altogether, will face each other, and there will be daily battles, skirmishes and fighting of more or less importance between the whole or parts of each army. The invading force, composed of 9,000 men, will be commanded by Major-General Tasker H. Bliss of the Army War College at Washington. The troops will include half a dozen regiments of infantry and detachments of cavalry and artillery from New York and Connecticut, and cavalry and artillery from New Jersey and the District of Columbia.

7,000 State Troops.

The invaders will be designated the "Red" army, and all the officers and enlisted men will wear broad bands of red around their hats. The Massachusetts troops, numbering about 7,000 men, will be known as the "Blue" army, and will have blue ribbons around their campaign hats, worn Texan peak style.

Plymouth and Bristol counties will be the scene of the war maneuvres and the territory covered will be about thirty miles square. The troops of both armies will be deployed over a large area of private property and through many cities and towns.

Major-General Leonard Wood, U. S. A., commander of the Department of the East, has made all the plans for the war games. He will be the chief umpire and after it is all over will make an official report to the War Department, which is taking a great interest in the matter. Every detail of the fighting will be carried out just as though the country were actually involved in war.

Test Autos as War Vehicles.

Automobiles will be freely used by both armies. The maneuvres will indeed furnish the first practical test in this country of the workings of these vehicles in war. An effort will be made to demonstrate their advantage over the horse.

Accompanying both armies will be military attaches of different foreign governments—European and Asiatic. It is said they are taking a great interest in the maneuvres, which will demonstrate the efficiency of volunteer troops in time of war.

The Massachusetts troops to take part in the war games are the Second, Fifth, Eighth and Ninth Regiments of Infantry, with bands; the Coast Artillery Corps, acting as infantry, with band; First and Second Corps Cadets, First Battalion Field Artillery, First Squadron Cavalry, without bands; Hospital Corps and Signal Corps.

Colonel Frederick E. Pierce, Second Regiment Infantry, will command the First Brigade during the maneuvres, and Colonel William H. Donovan, Ninth Infantry, will command the Second Brigade.

WORLD RACER STARTS HOME

YOKOHAMA, Aug. 3 (via cable).—Leave to-day by Empress of Japan for dash across Pacific. Reach Vancouver 14th and home 19th. Will win sure. All well. MORRIS.

The above cable received from Benjamin Morris by the BOSTON AMERICAN to-day shows that the eastward-bound world racer is homeward bound and will be back in Boston in sixteen days. He is exactly on schedule, and if nothing interferes he will make the 25,000-mile circuit in forty-three days.

H. L. Whitman, the westward-bound racer, is in Siberia, and is due at Irkutsk late to-morrow, whence, after a day's rest, he will get under way for Moscow and civilization. He is due in Boston about August 20, which will complete the circle of the globe in forty-two days and some hours.

It will be a matter of hours and minutes between Morris and Whitman, with a question of watching connections in this country as closely as abroad.

BOXING PRAISED BY NAVY MEN

While admitting that the death of a colored mess attendant on the battleship Vermont, at Provincetown, may have been due to injuries sustained in a boxing bout, naval officers now at Boston declare that boxing, as it is practiced in the navy, is a beneficial pastime. To some of the men, they say, it is almost necessary as a form of exercise and as a means of teaching them how to protect themselves from harm.

Captain Bullard, commanding the cruiser Olympia, said, when questioned on the subject, that the practice has been encouraged for years, and that officers and midshipmen, as well as enlisted men, occasionally put on the gloves.

Sentiments similar to those of Captain Bullard were expressed by Rear Admiral Swift, Captain Niblack of the frigate Hartford, and a number of officers at the Navy Yard.

Washington dispatches say that the mess attendant's death is regarded by the Navy Department as an unavoidable occurrence, such as occasionally is the sequel to a boxing bout, no matter where it is held. The Department also points out that recently the War Department, in passing upon the death of a soldier from boxing injuries, declared that he had died in the line of duty.

ASKED FOR A DRINK; GOT BULLET INSTEAD.

GLOUCESTER, Aug. 3.—Because Andrew Shearn was too persistent in giving his order for a drink in the cafe of Mrs. Emily Miller, on Water street, Mrs. Miller brought a convenient revolver into play and sent a bullet into his head. The man is in the Addison Gilbert Hospital, where doctors say he will recover, although the bullet wound is but an inch over the right eye. Mrs. Miller, with some of her customers, are locked up by the police.

CALVIN WELLS DEAD.

PITTSBURG, Aug. 3.—Calvin Wells, millionaire steel master and principal owner of the Philadelphia Press, was stricken by heart disease at his home in Allegheny last night, and died two minutes later.

RAN WITH BURNED CHILD TO HOSPITAL

Patrick Dooley, forty-five years old, rescued from probable death by fire four-year-old Charles Galvin, while at play in an areaway at the rear of No. 100 Fellows street, Roxbury. When seen by Mr. Dooley the child was aflame from head to foot. He grabbed the child and smothered the flames with his clothing, severely burning his hands. Then, with the boy in his arms, he rushed to the City Hospital, where the child was placed upon the dangerous list.

NEW ENGLANDERS SAILED TO-DAY

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—The following New Englanders sailed to-day on the Kronprinz Wilhelm for Bremen via Plymouth and Cherbourg: Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lyman, Frederick Lyon, Mrs. W. G. Sharp, Mrs. James J. Storrow, Francis Leo Whittemore, Arthur M. Pautsch, Carl J. Suck of Boston, George R. Hebden, Plainfield, Ct.; Dr. Charles F. Peckham of Providence, Houston A. Thomas, Hamilton, Mass.

KELIHER IS SLATED FOR BIG COMMITTEE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3. — Although Speaker Cannon has not yet made public his committee appointments for the next regular session of Congress, it is pretty generally understood who will get some of the most important assignments. It is more than probable that Representative John A. Keliher of Boston will be made a member of the appropriations committee, the most important and hardest working committee in the House.

BATTLING NELSON GETS REVENGE ON HOTEL FOR PREVIOUS SNUB

Battling Nelson, lightweight champion of the world, is in Philadelphia to-day and apparently happy, as the following dispatch from him to the BOSTON AMERICAN indicates:

"I run over to Philadelphia last night to do a little business with my book and incidentally I put one over on the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel.

"You remember sometime ago when I came over here and registered B. Nelson, Hegewisch, Ill., I got the 'polite office' at the desk. 'Sorry, but we are full. In the course of an hour's time we may fix you up,' they said.

"I returned in about an hour and inquired for a room and was told the same thing that they handed me earlier in the evening.

Last night I put one over on them by wiring a friend of mine to secure a room for me in advance, which he did and paid for. I have a very swell room on the twelfth floor, for which they charge me $5.

Overlooked at First.

"When I came over I got the key and went to my room and dictated this telegram to the hotel stenographer. I was not discovered for an hour, as there was quite a crowd down stairs when I came in. It happened that all the bellhops were busy. I was therefore overlooked. I had a nice outside room, with a private bath, telephone over at a desk next to my bed, a nice large tub, big enough so that I did the Annette Kellerman stunt last night and again this morning. There was enough of hot and cold water to float R. M. S. Lusitania.

"To show you how particular and cautious they were, they furnished me with an antiseptic sterilized washrag. But the chambermaid was a little bit careless at that, or else she knew me better than the head clerk, beause she did not leave any soap. Evidently she thought I was clean before I came to the hotel. The chambermaid made one mistake by putting the waste basket in the bathroom, instead of by the writing desk, but I made the change when I needed it.

"I discovered in the clothes closet that there is a box with an opening to the hall way where I left my boots to be shined in the morning. I did not think I was taking any chances of having them stolen because they have entirely all white help at the hotel, no negroes. They did not try and even up the old score for the three wallopings I gave Gans, as my boots were shined as bright as a new silver dollar when I got up.

"All the bellhops at this hotel are a fine bunch of young fellows, and everyone of them knows me and will break their necks to do a favor for me. Not so with the clerks and managers."

"Up They Came, at Midnight."

"I just wanted to go to the Bellevue-Stratford on purpose to show them that I could put one over and stop there whether they wanted me to or not. Well, it was very funny last night at that. About midnight, when I was preparing a lot of stuff to send to my newspaper friends all over the country, the Bellevue-Stratford squad of house detectives came up to make me vacate the room at 12:15, but I protested and told them to come back later. They arrived back in fifteen minutes, but then the lock was out of whack and the door would not unlock. My friend was still in my room, and I telephoned to the office for them to open the door, but they could not do it, so I had to keep him there all night as my guest.

"The managers cut me off from all communication, as they realized they were up against it, and wanted to suppress the notoriety of refusing me rooms. The only reasons they gave for not wanting me there was that I would have bums call on me, etc., etc."

WORCESTER MAN LEADS N. E. LEAGUE BATTERS

Changes at the top of the New England League batting list continue, and Yerkes, Worcester's new outfielder, is in front now with an average of .380 in nine games. Yerkes started in the league at a fast clip, having made 13 hits in 34 trips to the plate. Dan Duggan of New Bedford, who was swatting the ball hard, only got into two games and failed to connect in either of them, his figures going down with a thud until he is now only sixth on the list, although he is still stinging the leather at a .316 pace.

The veteran Billy Hamilton, however, continues to be the real swell swatsmith of the league, and he is runner up with an average of .345 made in 74 games, which does not look as though the ex-big leaguer were ready for Osley treatment yet.

Two players have reached the century class in hits this week, Hugh Bradley of Worcester and Simmy Murch of Brockton. Both have 102 hits, but Bradley has played in only 80 games while Murch has participated in three more. Murch struck a slump early in the week and failed to connect safely for several days, Bradley beating him to the hundred mark, but Murch came through strong at the finish and put his total on a level with the Worcester man's. Bradley stands fourth on the list with an average of .328, while Murch is hammering away at a .323 gait.

The real classy batting last week was done by wee Pete Burg of Lynn, the smallest man in the league. He made 12 hits in six games, boosting his average to .304. He connected safely in every game, and only failed to quit with two hits in one game, making up for it by landing three in another.

Henry Rondeau, the $3,500 beauty, continues his batting slump and is not in the list of the 25 leading hitters. He is 26th on the list, although late in the week he began to find the ball again and looks good to land back in a week.

Autrey of Lynn also failed to do much hard hitting. Harold Danzig dropped one point below the .300 class because of a slump early in the week, but he, too, was going well at the finish.

There are 14 men in the league batting better than .300. Worcester has six of the leading 25 hitters, Lynn three, Brockton four, New Bedford two, Fall River two, Haverhill five and Lowell one. The leading 25 batters are:

BASEBALL NEWS AND NOTES

When Red Murray of the Giants steals a base he bounces up on his feet like a jack-in-the box.

* * *

Pitcher Blaine Durbin, shifted by Pittsburg to Scranton, is to rejoin the Pirates on September 26.

* * *

Manager Mack has released Pitcher "Rube" Vickers to the Toledo American Association team.

* * *

The Philadelphia National League club, through Scout Martin, has signed a conditional contract with Pitcher Toney of the Winchester team of the Blue Grass League in Kentucky, and is to join the Phillies September 1.

* * *

"Red" Murray's teammates say that he would be one of the hardest and steadiest hitters in the country if he could only wait out a ball. "Red" goes after them high, low, outside and in. The pitchers know this and make capital out of his impatience.

* * *

George Moriarty of the Detroit team is credited with having stolen home three times out of five attempts this year. If he can steal the plate that often he should try it about every time he gets on third with two gone.

* * *

Clarke Griffith of the Cincinnati Reds is of the opinion that his team will finish third in the National League race. He thinks he has a chance of beating the Giants. If he does, watch him next year, for he has a team of youngsters who are coming.

* * *

Looks now as if "Billy" Murray had an ace buried when he announced he would remain manager of the Phillies and that he knew exactly whereof he spoke.

BOXING BITS OF NEWS

Hugo Kelly is matched with Frank Klaus at New Orleans on September 26.

* * *

Otto Sieloff, former lightweight star, after a year of idleness, is going back into the game if he can get on any matches.

* * *

They are very set on a new fighter in San Francisco named McCarthy. He is a red-headed brick layer and he has been on three times and has won all three bouts. Coffroth had been using him as a preliminary man.

* * *

Louis Blot now announces that he will have nothing to do with Al Kaufman or any other pugilist. Blot is a big commission merchant in San Francisco [illegible] backed Billy Papke. He says that he couldn't mix his business with that of Mr. Kaufman and make good with both. So big Al will have to fall back on Morris Levy or Billy Delaney. There doesn't seem to be a [illegible] of the good ship Kaufman.

* * *

Eddie McGoorty of Oshkosh, the middle weight champion of Wisconsin, is still on the warpath and wants to arrange a match with Hugo Kelly of Chicago. McGoorty says he is willing to bet $500 on the side, and will split the purse in any way that Kelly desires. [illegible] Mahoney of Racine, who has disputed his title in Wisconsin, and makes the same offer to him as to Kelly.

* * *

Jack Robinson, who has been in the East for a long time campaigning in rings there, is now in Chicago and announces that he would like to get on matches with some of the good welterweights. Jack says he is not particular about the weights, but would like to get on with any of them, Jimmy Clabby, Jimmy Gardner, Jack Drumgoole or any of the rest of them. Jack says the Benton Harbor Club has offered him a match with Clabby and he would like to hear from the Milwaukee man. Jack also would like to hook up with the boxer they call "Papke No. 2" and promises to give him the tryout of his life.

CLUB VOTES COAKLEY SUIT

All sorts of good luck was voted John W. Coakley at the weekly meeting of the Dorchester Driving Club in his campaign through the Grand Circuit with the pacers Aileen Wilson, 2:02¼, and Sarah Ann Patch, 2:15¼. It was a send-off that would make any person appreciate the club fellowship in extending it.

But for the wind-up the club went still further in voting that Mr. Coakley be presented with a complete driving suit, the coat and cap to be of the best silk and in the club colors—blue and gold. This was through he being the first member to strike deep water with his horses. In this way the blue and gold will be seen all down the line to Lexington.

One of the visitors in the evening was J. H. Bronson of New Haven, Ct., who this week sold Aileen Wilson to Mr. Coakley. He was much impressed with the driving club and the spirit which was in evidence.

SUNDAY AMERICAN Want Ads. Bring Monday Morning Returns.

JIMMY WALSH TO FIGHT IN ENGLAND

Jimmy Walsh received an offer to go over to England and box Digger Stanley and Boyo Driscoll. The offer was accompanied by good inducements, and the bantamweight champion thinks well of the proposition. He figures that while the present bunch of bantams on this side are fighting it out he can make the trip across and gather some coin, and return home ready to meet the likeliest looking lad for the title.

TYPO TEAM WINS AGAIN.

The Boston newspaper team won over the strong Buchanans of South Boston, 7 to 4, on the National League grounds yesterday afternoon. The best work for the winners was done by Donovan, Barry, McDonald and Crosby, while H. O'Brien, Kelley and Galvin excelled for the losers. The score:

Typos	0 0 0 1 2 0 1 0 x	7
Buchanans	0 3 0 1 0 0 0 0 0	4

Batteries—Ebert, Murray and Whitcomb; Lamb and Montgomery.

JOHNSON PUTS HIS FORFEIT UP TO MEET JEFF

CHICAGO, Aug. 3.—Jack Johnson's forfeit of $5,000 to cover that put up by Jim Jeffries for the heavyweight championship has been placed in the hands of Ed Smith, sporting editor of the Chicago American, and all that remains to bind the match is the meeting of the principals or their representatives to draw up the agreements and await the offers of the promoters.

George Little, a Chicago sporting man, put up the money for Johnson, and it will be forwarded to New York immediately, where Jeffries's coin is held.

Both Johnson and Jeffries maintain that they are the champions of the class, and it remains to be seen who will do the dictating in the matter of making the articles, as both claim the initiative.

GARTH SELLS HIS TWO FAST PACERS

KALAMAZOO, Aug. 3.—The Garth struck society at Detroit this year with three pacers of quality, Walter Hal, Vic McEwen and March McEwen. They had been raced over the half-mile tracks, and the bushmen say Walter is the poorest of the three. This talk has sold Vic McEwen to James Dodge of Orangeburg, N. Y., and before the week is out March McEwen may be in the Estabrook stable, as the Denver man secured an option after Macey had driven her the last half of a 2:08¾-mile in 1:00¾.

BOLIVAR, 2:00¾, IN FORM.

Bolivar, 2:00¾, joint holder of the race record for pacing geldings with Prince Alert, 1:59½, seems to be back to his form of 1907, as demonstrated by a workout mile recently paced by him over the Syracuse track in 2:04¼.

HILLTOPS' NEW PITCHER.

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—The New York American League Club sold Pitcher George McConnell to the Rochester team of the Eastern League to-day. McConnell will be recalled in the Fall.

1915 WINNERS TO GET PRIZES AND SPEECHES

Prize winners in the 1915 athletic meets during July will be given their medals at a series of meetings to be held in the different districts next Thursday night at 8 o'clock. These meetings will be open not only to the winners, but to all competitors, and to all boys of these districts between the age of twelve and twenty who desire to attend.

Speakers representing the Boston-1915 Committee will award the medals and badges. The meetings will be held in places convenient to the neighborhood of the playground where the district meets were held. The Charlestown boys who took part in the events at SOullivan Square will gather at the Bunker Hill Boys' Club, 10 Wood street, where Daniel J. Hurley, the former Harvard football captain, will award the prizes.

The Dorchester boys will go to the locker building on Franklin Field near where their meets were held. Mr. Frank S. Mason will award the prizes. The boys who competed at Wood Island Park, East Boston, will meet at St. Mary's House for Sailors, 120 Marginal street, where the medals will be presented by F. W. Sullivan of the 1915 organization. North End boys will receive their medals from Meyer Bloomfield at the Civic Service House, 112 Salem street, North End. For the boys of Roslindale and West Roxbury who competed at Pierce's Field, the meeting will be at the Claremont Club with Mr. Clarence E. Fitzpatrick to award the prizes.

The Ruggles Street Neighborhood House will be the place of meeting for the Roxbury boys who competed at the Marcella Street Playground, Louis L. Pelpper, speaker; while the Jamaica Plain boys who competed at Marcella Street will meet at the Jamaica Plain Neighborhood House, 23 Carolina avenue, where Mr. D. J. Leonard will award the prizes.

All the boys who competed in Brighton at the North Brighton playground will join forces with boys of the South End and the Back Bay who competed at Columbus avenue for a meeting at Ellis Memorial, 12 Carver street, where the prizes will be awarded by John M. Cates of the Y. M. C. A. The remainder of the boys who competed at Columbus avenue will meet at South Bay Union, 640 Harrison avenue, where the prizes will be awarded by Mitchell Freiman.

The winners of events at Charlesbank in the West End and at M. street, South Boston, received their medals on the fields after the game last Saturday.

It is also announced by the playground association that boys in any of the districts where these meetings are to be held who desire to enter for the August mets may do so at these meetings Thursday night by obtaining entry blanks from the speakers or from the registrar at the different gathering places.

WILL ROOT FOR LORD.

A big party of baseball rooters from Maine are quartered at the American House and will sit in a body at the games to-day to root for Harry Lord of the Boston Red Sox, who has been a famous ball player "Down East" ever since his Bates College days.

Not knowing of the Monday postponements, the big party came down Sunday night by boat, and had to wait a day to see baseball.

STRAIGHT DOPE FOR SPORT FANS

NOW THAT JOHNSON HAS POSTED his forfeit everybody is asking where he got the coin, as it is well known that the colored champion has blown all the wealth he got out of his late bouts. That's easy enough explained by the fact that George Little, his backer, shoved the mazuma across and got his little say in the newspapers. Johnson reminds us of the way English fighters act, a habit he may have acquired while tarrying abroad. They all have their governors who look after the money end of arranging matches, the regular manager attending simply to the details.

IF EVER A PROFESSIONAL ATHLETE were determined to maintain his fame at the head of the game he has been master of, that person is Hughey McLean, the motor paced title holder, who comes out again on Saturday night at the Revere track in the first race of the season for him.

He was determined to quit the track this Summer, but only after weeks of coaxing by boosting the offer were the Connolly boys, who are running the track, able to get Hughey to change his mind. McLean5s contract of $2,000 for four races is the biggest a rider has got for years around here. He has already taken off ten pounds of extra weight and is tearing off miles at a 1:30 gait.

THERE SEEMS TO BE A DIFFERENCE of opinion on the result of the Ketchel-Langford bout in New York on Labor Day. Many believe that the longer the bout goes the worse it will be for Langford, as Ketchel's strength is a feature of his ring career and he is almost sure to get his man before the limit.

ALECK M'LEAN, WHO FOUGHT JACK Johnson and Sandy Ferguson against Sam Langford, believes that the middleweight would not have a ghost of a show against Johnson at present.

EMPEROR BILL FIRED HIS SKIPper a few weeks ago for not handling his yacht properly, although the boat won the race. It was something new in the yacht ing line. Yesterday, at Cowes, one of the Kaiser's yachts finished first, but was disqualified for not crossing the finish line in the right place. It looks like another skipper would soon be seeking a new job.

"JOHNSON DON'T WANT ANY PART of Langford's game," remarked Joe Woodman. "You can bet on that. When the pair met at Chelsea a few years ago there is no question but that Jack had the better of the argument, and at one time I thought Sam would fade away by the sleep route, but Johnson couldn't do the trick and in the last part of the fight Sam had Jack on the defensive. Sam weighed 148 pounds that night, while Johnson weighed 196. If they were to meet six weeks from now Langford would tip the scales at 170 and Johnson would be close to 212. Sam can easily make 158 at 3 o'clock for Ketchel on Labor Day."

THAT LAY-OFF IN BASEBALL YESterday was as tough on the fans as a rainy Saturday for a schoolboy. It was hard lines, with both teams on hand and a splendid day served up, to have to sit around with nothing doing.

THERE'LL BE ANOTHER "CHICK" IN the big leagues when Chickering F. Evans, one of the pitchers of the Hartford, Ct., Club, joins the Boston Nationals at the close of the Connecticut League season early in September. "Chick" is something of a pitcher. On July 22, 1908, against Bridgeport, he allowed no hit, gave no base on balls and did not hit a man with a pitched ball. Evans is not yet twenty-one years old and was born at Arlington, Vt., in September, 1888. He first pitched for the Burnburton Seminary nine of Manchester, Vt., being the mainstay of his school nine in the box for three years. Then he pitched semi-professional ball one season (1907) at Hoosick Falls. His work there attracted the attention of Tommy Dowd, the well-known former Brown University star, and Dowd signed Evans for the Hartford Club. That was for the season of 1908. Evans pitched all last year for the Hartford Club and has done good work this year. Evans comes to Boston in exchange for Pitcher Tom McCarthy and a cash consideration.

WELL, NUMBER THIRTEEN HAS gotten in its deadly work against the wonder of them all, Christy Mathewson. Or at least every member on the Giants payroll swears that it was the number thirteen. The hunch that Matty would lose his game came when the team rode in Pullman car No. 13 on their way to the Pirates' camp.

Matty was trying hard to equal the record set by Happy Jack Chesbro five years ago. Matty had won thirteen games when he met his first defeat since May 24. Another bad hunch. Even his old fadeaway had its day off, and was rambling around Shenely Park when Matty wanted it right there at his beck and call to help stop the Pirates.

Here is Mathewson's record up to his defeat at the hands of Fred Clark's men:

Date.	Opposing.	Score.	Op. pitcher.
May 28	Philadelphia	3-0	Covaleskie
May 31	Philadelphia	6-4	Covaleskie
June 8	Chicago	3-2	Brown
June 12	Cincinnati	2-0	Ewing
June 16	Pittsburg	8-2	Leifield
June 23	Boston	5-4	Mattern
June 23	Boston	11-1	White
July 3	Brooklyn	9-1	McIntire
July 12	Pittsburg	3-0	Wilhelm
July 16	Cincinnati	5-3	McIntire
July 27	Boston	3-2	Willis
June 25	Brook[illegible]	2-1	Rowan
June 30	Brooklyn	6-2	Ferguson

THE SPORTS AND NEAR SPORTS of this town and many another will have a chance to get their hard-earned coin down on the good things now at another track. Saratoga opened yesterday, with everything yelling "success" at a tiptop pitch. A feature of the opining day was the Flash Stakes for youngsters, which went to that little stake colt Waldo. Waldo is some horse all right, but I don't believe the race he ran was any more sensational than the time Pickled Onion won the Tenderloin Stake. That was a race, don't you think?

Sporting Dope, Boston American:
Is it possible to retire a man on a blocked ball before he advances a base, or is he entitled to a base? W. F. DONNOLLY.

It is possible to retire a man on a blocked man before he advances a base. It can be done by the blocked ball being thrown to the pitcher, if the pitcher steps on the rubber and relays the ball to a baseman in time to catch the man advancing.

Sport Dope, Boston American:
If a ball delivered by pitcher to batsman passes behind batsman and strikes his bat while he is in the act of dodging ball, what should be the decision of umpire in case the ball rolls fair; also what in case it rolls foul, and, in either case, can a base runner advance? H. A. WEEDEN.

The ball is a fair ball or a foul ball, as it lands, and everybody, including the umpire, should act accordingly. If it is fair the base runners can advance.

Sport Dope, Boston American:
If a fly ball be batted and a fielder in catching it lets it bounce out of his mitt, but recovers it before it strikes the ground, is the batter out? L. M. SMITH.

The man who hit the ball is out, provided the ball did not touch the ground or any object other than the fielder.

SAILOR BURKE PUTS K. O. ON LUCAS IN 2D

NEW YORK, Aug 3.—Sailor Burke made short work of Fred Lucas at the Bedford Club, stopping him in two rounds. Burke dropped his man just after the first bell rang and had him at his mercy after that. Lucas went to the mat three times in the second round, when Jim Shortwell stepped between the men and called a halt, sending Burke to his corner.

HAL CHASE STARTED GAME AT 12 YEARS

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—Think of spending half a life time on the job of being Hal Chase's father and never seeing him play baseball in fast company. That is what James E. Chase did.

It was just the other day that he saw for the first time his boy in action in the American League. He and his wife sat in a box during the Yankee-Washington contest, in which New York emerged victor by the score of 4 to 2. Mr. Chase is 65 years old. His head is sprinkled with gray, but he is strong-limbed and sharp-eyed. The mother, with her old-fashioned black cloth gloves, leaned over the box railing and those two loving parents simply gobbled up everything that Chase did. If he fumbled a catch momentarily you could see the wince of anxiety on their wrinkled faces. When he came to bat they held each other by the hand, all unconscious of the New York public, which riveted its gaze upon them.

"If you would know how my son came to be a great ball player," narrated Mr. Chase, "I can very easily explain. The home of our family was in Mathias, Me. We were blue nose Yankees. In 1865 I went West by way of New York and the Isthmus of Panama. To-day is the first time I have seen New York since then. Hal's great-grandfather fought in the Revolutionary War, and when Harold began to grow up his mother and I tried to interest him in United States history. We lived in Santa Cruz county, California. And I did manage to keep him in public school for a while.

"There were five boys and one girl. The oldest boy died. Hal is the youngest of our children. When he was six years old he could throw a stone straight as a rifle shot, and I had to pay for many a pane of glass in our neighbors' homes.

"I was in the lumber business and I put him to sawing wood. If I left him ten minutes he would run off and get in a ball game. He could run very fast and I could not catch him. Even at that people said he would become a professional ball player.

"My wife and I are of the Baptist faith, and Mrs. Chase could not allow Harold to play on Sunday. She thought it a sacrilege. Well, when Hal was twelve years old he got an offer of fifty cents to catch for a club in a nearby village. He could play any position. He stole his brother Albert's uniform and got away from the house. The church members told us about it, for this was on a Sunday in July, and Mrs. Chase insisted that I go after Hal. It was a hot expedition. Sometimes I would see him ahead of me and yell; then he would duck under a bush and throw me off the scent. Finally he doubled on his tracks and escaped.

"I went back to the village church and told my wife then and there that Harold would be a professional ball player in spite of everything we could do. So we made up our minds to let him go.

He is twenty-six years old now and he does not care for anything but baseball. He has his old parents so dizzy that we read the Yankee scores before we eat breakfast. I suppose that success in life is to do what comes easiest. That, at least, was our philosophy with Hal."

UMPIRE CALLED TIME TO TAKE A CHEW

McPHERSON, Kan., Aug. 3.—Umpire "Mickie" Cleary set a world's record for himself when he called time in the eighteenth inning of a twenty-one inning game between McPherson and Lyons of the Kansas State League and appealed to a friend in the grandstand for a chew of tobacco. Mickie got a handful of "hay," as he called it, shoved it to one side of his mouth and then shouted, "Batter up." The crowd howled with delight at the sight.

Lyons won by the score of 2 to 1. McPherson scored in the fourth inning by an error. Laganaur pitched the first seventeen innings without hitting or walking a man. He then asked to be relieved. Brannon, on third, made sensational stops twice and Perrine a feature by making a double play on third base unassisted. The game was fast and played in 2:50.

HEYDLER TO HEAD NATIONAL LEAGUE

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Aug. 3.—About an hour after Harry C. Pulliam, late president of the National League of Baseball Clubs, was buried in Cave Hill Cemetery, John Heydler of Cincinnati, secretary of the league, was chosen president of the league at a special meeting of the directors. There was some feeling that it might be indelicate to name Mr. Pulliam's successor at this time, but the league's immediate need of a qualified head overcame the qualm.

JACK JOHNSON'S CHANCES BEST IN SHORT FIGHT

The fight fans of the country will have plenty of time to debate the possibilities of the outcome of the Johnson-Jeffries match, for it will be at least five months before the big fellows get together, if ever.

There are several little hitches that may arise before the final articles are signed, and there is a chance that the men will never meet.

Johnson has made a statement to the effect that he will demand a good share of the receipts and that he will not let Jeffries take five-sixths of the gate, as Tommy Burns did.

Johnson accepted the Burns terms merely to get the chance at the championship, and now that he is the recognized champion he believes that he is entitled to an equal amount of the receipts. Nothing has been said about a division of the receipts in case the match is made. Only a side bet has been talked of.

Jeff has posted his $5,000 and will post the remaining $5,000 when articles are signed. Johnson has always said that there was only one man he cared to wager a side bet with, and that was Jeffries. Johnson posted $5,000 some six weeks ago, but no Jeffries money showed up to cover it. The money was posted as Jeffries did, in five one thousand dollar bills, and when there was no word from the ex-champion Johnson let the money go as a side bet for Ketchel, which match will take place at Coffroth's club on October 12.

There has been much discussion of late as to which man will have the advantage if the fight goes a long distance. It is very likely that they will only go twenty-five, though, and if they do the majority of fans figure that Johnson will play a waiting game and blind Jeff before he plays for any real knockout punches.

Then, again, there are the Jeff admirers, who say the longer it goes the better Jeff will get, and it will be only a matter of time when he will get Johnson with his famous left to the stomach, which punch has won many a victory for the big boilermaker.

Jeff goes away to Europe Thursday for several weeks, and in the meantime Johnson is expected to cover his forfeit. This will probably be done next week, when Johnson is expected in New York.

The referee, the dividing of the purse, the rules and several other important matters must be arranged before final articles are signed, and much arguing is expected before it is clinched.

HARD GAME AHEAD FOR ROGER WOLCOTTS

The Roger Wolcott A. A., which has the best claim on the amateur championship of the State, will have a hard game on its hands on Saturday when its opponents at the Dunbar avenue grounds will be the undefeated South Medford team. Garland of Somerville High or Coss will pitch for the visitors with Dumas catching. The Wolcotts will rely upon their crack south-paw, Duffy, with Hagerty, formerly of the Notre Dames, on the receiving end. Dan Sullivan, the holder of the twenty-four strike-out record, has had a lame shoulder all season and may not pitch this year. He will be used in the outfield Saturday.

BISA STILL TOUTED FOR STAKE RACES

The statement has been made that Bisa was a disappointment in the M. and M., but local horsemen can not see it that way. She made a great reputation in 1907 by coming second to General Watts in 2:06½ at Lexington, but in that race she was not close up and the chances are that her mile was not as good as 2:08. Of course she was a three-year-old and should have improved a lot in the two years since she had been raced.

However, it must be taken into consideration that it was October when she was so good at Lexington, while her race at Detroit was in July. The reputation of her family, of late years at least, has not been made on the speed they displayed early in the season. The Bingens, and she is also by a son of Bingens, have been prominent from Readville on.

Uhlan was unplaced in the handicap and won a heat race at Readville, but it was at Columbus and Lexington that he displayed the form which made him look like a future champion. The Leading Lady trotted her best race at Columbus and took her record at Lexington; Binvolo took his record the closing week of the Lexington meeting and Aquin raced all down the line from Detroit, but did not show himself to be a high class horse until the Syracuse meeting in the middle of September.

Bisa trotted a heat Wednesday right around 2:08 and that means that she is a high class mare, not as good as Margin to be sure, but one who will win more than one good race before the season closes. She is entered right through to Lexington and before she gets to the blue grass country Walter Cox will admit that there is at least one of the Bingen tribe with class.

PIRATES HAVE PLAY TO KILL THE BUNT.

Pittsburg Pirates, now tearing through the other National League teams at a furious pace, have worked out a new play for killing a bunt. It is working beautifully.

There's a runner on first and second. Of course, the manager of the opposing team gives the signal for a sacrifice.

Now watch. The first and third baseman run in, playing half way to the plate. The second baseman takes position half way between first and second. The shortstop stands just back of the runner on second.

The batter bunts toward first or third. The man on second starts madly for third, which seems uncovered. But wait, the shortstop is running just ahead of him. He catches the ball, touches the runner and slams it across to the second baseman at first, often completing a double play. They caught "Bugs" Raymond by ten feet at the third sack in the last New York series with it.

The only way to beat the play is for the batter to slam the ball out instead of bunting.

WHITE AND LARSEN DRAW.

GOLF GOSSIP NEWS OF THE LINKS

Arthur G. Lockwood, whose 75 for the 18 holes at Hatherly tournament was only one worse than the winning score, 74, of Mr. Raymond, lost his chance to win the cup by driving into a cave on the third hole of his second round. The ball was so far into the rocks that he had to use a club to polo it out with, and as he stepped back to play his next shot a player near by stepped up and picked up a gold watch directly back of his heel.

T. R. Fuller, who was among the players in the recent open tourney on the South Shore, did not bring in much of a score as he had the misfortune to lose one ball and to have his second played by another player.

Charles Evans, the new Western golf champion, who played such a splendid match with Albert Sekel last Saturday in the final round, 5as decided to enter for the first time the national championship at Wheaton next month. He is the youngest W. G. A. title winner having the honor of champion, while he holds many other titles, such as Western interscholastic champion, Chicago amateur champion, Western junior champion and others.

WAGNER WILL PLAY AGAIN

PITTSBURG, Aug. 3.—Baseball Pittsburg is relieved and overjoyed to learn that the phyicians will permit Hans Wagner to return to the game some time this week and remain there so long as he takes no chances, but is very careful. While this probably means that the injured champion will not be able to let himself out or play his best, the fans believe that even his presence in the line-up will mean everything to the wearers of the red and blue.

So watchful have been the physicians over the big fellow's condition that they would not permit him to rise and take a train for Louisville to assist at the burial of his old friend, Harry C. Pulliam. The champion batsman of the world wept at this, but did as instructed by his physicians and to-day he submitted to a physical examination.

Wagner declares he would play to-day, but the physicians say not.

Welcome the Old Friends of Your Husband

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX.

Copyright, 1909, by American-Journal-Examiner

A LITTLE book, written by each clergyman who performs the marriage ceremony ought to go with the marriage certificate.

This booklet should not be written on the subject of the need of spiritual counsel in the home, but on the subject of the need of common sense in the home life. One of the important clauses should be the proper treatment of the old friends of the husband by the wife and the old friends of the wife by the husband. In scores of homes unnecessary trouble, discord and misery are produced by the lack of reason, judgment, kindness and common sense in this matter.

I have in mind a beautiful and charming woman who married a popular bachelor. With every quality and charm to keep her husband in love with her and to make her compare favorably with all women he had known or admired formerly, this foolish wife has deliberately cut her husband off from all his old associates. Even his best men chums are not invited to the house.

Excludes His Old Friends

The social circle of the married pair is formed of a few people the wife knew before her marriage, people who had not been included among the bachelor's acquaintances. Even the mention of some of the respectable and platonic women friends with whom he used to dine and with whom he passed social hours, brings a storm in the domestic atmosphere.

Still another woman married a wealthy and widely known widower, and every friend of the first wife was coldly cut, and no calls from any of the former circle were paid.

It is impossible for a woman to love a man enough, or to give him happiness enough in the long run, to repay him for such tactless and selfish conduct. She makes herself and him ridiculous and sooner or later, such an attitude must bring discontent and disillusionment to the husband.

The wife who prides herself upon making friends with all the respectable acquaintances of her husband, who endeavors to be popular with both his men and women friends, may rest assured that she will bind her husband's heart to her with new cords. She will win his gratitude and admiration, as well as keep his love. One such wife I knew whose husband married her because he needed a home keeper, and because she was sweet and domestic, rather than because he madly loved her. But the deepest love, and pride, and admiration, were all awakened in his heart after marriage by her tactful and gracious treatment of his old friends and her charming hospitality toward them.

Sometimes It Is the Husband

Quite as often perhaps the husband is the one who exhibits foolish jealousy and selfishness regarding the friends of the wife. Always is it an evidence of selfishness and self love; never of a great, broad, true passion.

Sometimes, indeed, a man or a woman may have known undesirable and unworthy people, and when they are excluded from the new home there may be a failure on the part of the wife or husband to see the real and just motive.

Sometimes a man knows better than his wife the lives of her former acquaintances, and realizes that they are not the best friends for her to cultivate in her new position. But where the old friends are decent, clean and cultured men and women, and where their friendship has been unselfish and wholesome, no greater mistake can be made by husband or wife than to exclude them from the home or to show them anything but the most cordial good will.

Even as a selfish motive, of desiring to be popular and wanting to be admired by the old friends, it is a wise ambition.

Dr. Eliot Catches a Book Worm

A LITTLE book worm, who heard of Dr. Eliot's promise of a liberal education to anybody who would go through five feet of books, took a preliminary canter through the four volumes shown in the picture.

Each book contained 500 pages. The literary bug started at page 200 in Volume I, and bored his way in a straight line to page 450 in Volume IV, when the doctor caught him.

Can you tell how many pages the little fellow had passed through when his education was interrupted?

One hundred prize puzzle books will be awarded among those who send best answers to Puzzle Editor, in care of this paper. Be sure to state which numbers of the puzzle books you have already received, as from week to week you will have opportunities to win a complete set of eight books.

DISTINGUISHED

His savoir-faire, to say nothing of his tact and finesse, impressed the young woman.

"Evidently," she said, "you have been thrown in contact with an unusually large and varied lot of people."

"Well," he admitted, "among the members of the police force I have the reputation of being the most persistent motor scorcher in the country."

And Then Penelope Admired Percival's Friend ☘ ☘ By Kennett Harris

PENELOPE sighed. It was an unmistakable sigh of relief, and Percival looked surprised. "Why?" he asked.

Penelope smiled. It was an enchanting smile, but Percival, for once, seemed quite unaffected by it. "Why?" he asked again.

"Isn't it lovely to be all by our owney, aloney selves?" she demanded, pushing a forefinger into the buttonhole in the lapel of his coat.

When Percival boosted his friend and told how fine he really was Penelope didn't like him.

"You don't like him, then?" said Percival.

"I don't dislike him," answered Penelope. "But don't you think he's just a little——"

"No, I don't," replied Percival. "Not a bit of it. He's full size, if ever a fellow was, and first-class material."

"Raw material?" suggested Penelope, with a lift of her eyebrows.

"Well, I'm sorry you don't like him," said Percival. "I thought you'd cotton to him right away. Of course, he isn't a pretty boy, and he doesn't wear ribbons in his shoes and powder his nose when it gets shiny."

"I do," confessed Penelope, "and I'm afraid I shall continue to do so, even if you disapprove of such practices." She took her finger from the buttonhole and put both hands behind her.

"You know I didn't mean to slam you honey-bird," said Percival.

Penelope took a step backward.

"I meant that he wasn't a ladylike person," explained the young man. "At the same time, you don't have to move the furniture up against the wall when he comes into a room, and he doesn't two-step all over himself when he goes to a dance. Oh, he's an all-round crackerjack, Dicky is."

"I should imagine he might be," said Penelope.

"You can turn your imagination loose and let 'er soar all she wants to, and you won't come within a mile of him," declared Percival. "He can box better than nine-tenths of the men that are in the ring to-day."

Some of His Accomplishments

"That is certainly a high recommendation," said Penelope.

"He can make a banjo talk, and no punk line of conversation at that," continued Percival. "You being musical, I should think that would be a bond between you."

"My dear Percival," said Penelope, "when a banjo talks it never gets beyond slang, musically speaking. Does he play the accordeon also?"

"I wouldn't wonder," answerd Percival, innocently. "He can sing, too. I'll bring him over some evening and make him sing for you."

"That will be perfectly lovely," said Penelope, with delicate sarcasm.

"And if you want to get out your chafing dish, he'll show you how to make a rabbit, honey bird," Percival went on. "He's great at anything like that. He can mix a cocktail that's a dream. I'm not keen on cocktails as a general thing, but I wouldn't answer for myself if Dickey was around all the time with the ingredients."

"I thought you liked my rabbits," said Penelope, coldly.

"It's too feeble a word altogether," Percival answered, "I adore your rabbits! I'm crazy about 'em. When I think of 'em, my mouth waters and my brain whirls. I feel that I would barter my birthright for just one sniff. I count it as one of my rarest, most valued privileges to be allowed to stand by your side and hand you the mustard, and yank the obstructing cork from the creaming ale. There is only one perfect rabbit in the world and that's the one Penelope makes."

"When I said that Dicky would show you how, I just meant that he would be tickled to death to demonstrate his method, and really, the kind he dishes out isn't so worse. It's the cocktail that I would lay special stress upon. He calls it the 'crack shot cocktail,' because it hits the spot."

Why Penelope Objected to Him

"That's excruciatingly funny," commented Penelope. "But what a pity such a gift is wasted on an amateur! He would make a splendid saloonkeeper, wouldn't he? Has he any other accomplishments?"

"The Admirable Crichton wouldn't have anything on him," declared Percival. "But what's the use! He's queered himself with you somehow, and that settles it. I can't think how, and I don't suppose you're going to tell me. Perhaps it's because he's my particular chum and I wanted you to like him."

"Percival, darling," said Penelope, with sweet gravity, "you are unjust. You know that I would try to like any friend of yours; but this Mr. Robinson—well, I really think that he exercises a bad influence over you."

But when Penelope found out what the friend thought of her she changed her opinions regarding him.

Percival gasped and sank into a chair. "Fan me," he cried.

Penelope looked at him with an air of displeasure.

"But, honey-bird!" remonstrated Percival.

"I don't care," said Penelope. "A man who invents cocktails and who plays on the banjo can't be a very desirable companion."

"Have you ever noticed any banjo symptoms breaking out on me?" asked Percival.

"Don't be absurd," admonished the young woman. "You know perfectly well that you two have been in all sorts of mischief together. You've told me so yourself."

"I suppose I'll have to admit it," sighed Percival. "Poor Dicky! He was a nice, well-mannered boy before he met me, highly principled and a stranger to any form of dissipation. The great trouble with him was his gelatinous spinal column. He couldn't say 'No,' when I urged him into evil courses, and it wasn't long before his bloom of innocence was so badly rubbed it raised blisters. Now look at him. A young woman has only to exchange a few words with him to be filled with loathing and disgust. And a young woman for whom he has expressed the most profound admiration. The pity of it! The irony of it!"

Percival Is a Wise Guy

"What did he say about me?" asked Penelope. "Not that I care," she added.

"He said 'A fool for luck,' meaning me."

"How horrid of him!" said Penelope.

"He said they ought to lock up young ladies like you as menaces to the male public and stirrers-up of covetousness, envy and jealousy. He supposed that they would make a law to that effect if you weren't so rare. He was going to say some more, but I shut him up. Well, I won't bring him again. I'll steer him off somehow."

"Don't be silly," said Penelope. "I don't mind having you bring him. I want you to bring him. I don't want you to imagine that any friend of yours is unwelcome. I think perhaps he's the sort of man that might improve on acquaintance. He has nice eyes. Bring him when you come to-morrow night and I'll be as nice to him as I possibly can."

"Then I'll be hanged if I bring him," declared Percival.

It's Pretty Tough on Dad

By HANK

"I'VE been just six months on this earth and like it fairly well;
For all I have to do is eat and sleep and fuss and yell;
I've come to the conclusion that, whenever I am bad—
It's nice to be a baby, but
It's pretty tough on Dad.

It's Pop who has to warm the milk if I wake up at night;
It's Pop who has to walk the floor while I scream, kick and fight;
It's Pop who has to rock me if I'm feeling blue and sad;
It's nice to be a baby, but
It's pretty tough on Dad.

It's Pop who has to "cough the dough" to buy me all my clothes;
It's Pop who's always finding tacks a-sticking in his toes;
It's Pop who gets the brunt of it whenever Mom gets mad;
It's nice to be a baby, but
It's pretty tough on Dad.

It's Pop who has to wash my face if I get inky black;
It's Pop who has to find the pin that's sticking in my back;
They call me "Mother's child" and say: "The darling little lad,"
But never mention Pop at all—
It's pretty tough on Dad.

My Wife's Gone to the Country. Hurray! Hurray!

I.

ONE night while Brown lay dreaming, he heard a voice so low:
"I am the Devil, and I've come to take you down below."

But Browney quickly answered, "There's nothing here for you.
That's one place where I'll want my wife, you'll have to take her, too."

CHORUS.

My wife's gone to the country—Hurray—Hurray!
She thought it best—I need the rest—that's why she went away!
She took the children with her—Hurray—Hurray!
Then Brown did yell—Go back to Spain! My wife's gone away.

II.

His cat and dog and parrot, likewise his graphophone,
Were given singing lessons by the Singer machine at home,
They struck a chord on B flat, 'twould drive a loon insane,
But Browney soon distinguished they were singing this refrain:

CHORUS.

My wife's gone to the country—Hurray—Hurray!
She thought it best—I need the rest—that's why she went away!
They all sang in close harmony—my wife's gone away.

III.

He met his wife's dressmaker; she smiled on him so cute
And said: "I think it's time your wife should get another suit.
Each day it's growing colder; she'll need it, goodness knows."
But Browney said: "My wife is where the climate suits her clothes."

CHORUS.

My wife's gone to the country—Hurray—Hurray!
She thought it best—I need the rest—that's why she went away!
She took the children with her—Hurray—Hurray!

MY WIFE'S GONE TO THE COUNTRY—HOORAY! HOORAY!

Just wait until the ship comes in—my wife's gone away.

Up-to-Date Jokes

A PRACTICAL joker recently made his first trip to Niagara Falls, and a guide that he hired was trying to impress him with their magnitude.

"Grand!" suggested the guide.

The visitor did not seem impressed.

"Millions of gallons a minute," explained the guide.

"How many in a day?" asked the tourist.

"Oh, billions and billions," said the guide.

The other looked across and down and up, as if gauging the flow, and then turned away disinterestedly.

"Runs all night, too, I suppose," he remarked nonchalantly.

The guide never recovered.

"WELL, John, how are you to-day?" asked a minister on meeting one of his flock.

"Gey weel, sir; gey weel," replied John, "if it wasna for the rheumatism in my richt leg."

"Ah, John, be thankful, for there is no mistake you are getting old, like the rest of us, and old age does not come alone."

"Auld age, sir!" replied John. "I wonner to hear you. Here is my ither leg, jist as auld, an' it's soond an' souple yet."

Trust in Your Mother; She's Your Friend

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A GREAT many girls who write to me for advice say that they cannot tell their mothers.

That is all nonsense, girls; there should be nothing that you cannot tell your mothers.

Of course, there are lots of little secrets that girls tell each other; and that they would feel foolish in telling to an older person, but in the really important matters you must have no secrets from your mothers.

Write and ask my advice and my opinion—you are more than welcome to them, and I hope that they are of help to you—but tell your mothers also.

Don't you know that there is no one in all the world who so unselfishly has your interests at heart as the mother who bore you and who has guarded and guided you all through life?

You are not treating her fairly when you deceive her.

She knows far more than you do about everything.

Her Mother Knows Best

As regards your men friends, her eyes are made keen and clear through love of you, and it is her love that makes her critical.

She knows life and she knows how miserable you will be if married to the wrong man.

When you go against her wishes and meet men of whom she disapproves on the sly, you are simply laying up trouble for yourself.

The man who urges you to disobey your mother has not your welfare at heart; believe that, little maiden.

When a man is honestly courting a girl he is only too glad to meet and make a good impression on her parents.

The worthless man dreads the mother's keen eyes; he knows that she will see through his pretense of goodness.

More than half the trouble that has come to girls might have been averted if they had not deceived their mothers.

Of course, there are exceptions, and one occasionally sees a foolish, flighty, or a cold, calculating mother.

Fortunately, however, they are rare, and the average mother is a good woman—the person best fitted to guide and advise her child.

I cannot go against your mother's advice, but I would like to share with her in helping you; sisterly advice is next best to motherly advice.

All Women Are Sisters

All women, high and low, rich and poor, are just sisters, living the same joys and sorrows, going through the same heart throbs.

Remember that it is never too late to go to your mother, no matter how far you have strayed from the haven of her arms; they are still outstretched to fold you to her heart. To her you will always be her girl, her baby whom she has watched over and loved all your life.

Don't get too far away from her, dear, and don't keep your secrets from her.

WELL PLAYED

THE village amateur orchestral society was giving its annual concert to an audience mainly composed of admiring relatives and friends.

A selection from "Maritana" had just been given, and Stronglungs, the "circular bass" player, wiped the perspiration from his manly brow.

"Phew!" he murmured. "It's warm. What's the next piece?"

"Oh, that thing from 'San Toy,'" answered the 'cello man wearily.

Stronglungs gasped. "Why," he spluttered, "I've—I've just played that!"

I dreamed I was that lovely can
With Campbell's Soup inside.
It all was mine. I felt so fine
That when I woke I cried.

Hot-weather soups

No need of a roasting fire to prepare Campbell's Soups.

All you need is boiling water, or hot milk if you prefer. And in almost no time you have a savory, nourishing soup such as you could not make for two or three times the cost. And no better could be made at any cost.

Just add hot water, bring to a boil, and serve

THE SUMMER GIRL

By KENNETT HARRIS

I.

I MET her where the billows beat the beach.
And in the Summer season bathers team
Amid the merry maids who splash and scream,
And I decided that she was a peach.
Her manner did not put her out of reach—
She was quite friendly; she would fairly beam
When I approached. I pleased her, it would seem.
I taught her how to swim—I love to teach.
Then we grew confidential; each in turn
Related a life-story—what you'd call
Unbosomed. And she caused me some concern
By what she said. Of course, it would appall
Most anybody with a heart to learn
That she was not like other girls at all.

II.

SHE liked ice cream and candy pretty well,
And stuffed tomatoes slopped with mayonaise,
Nut salads and such truck, and had a craze
For pickles—dill—I heard her call them "swell."
Object to smoke? Oh, no; she loved the smell.
She giggled much and gushed in terms of praise,
And squealed when mice and moo-cows met her gaze.
She wore her shoes too small, the truth to tell.
It took her nearly half a day to dress
When on some special conquest she was bent.
Her dancing she just carried to excess,
A ball to her was always an event.
She may have told the truth though none the less,
I've since found girls are mighty different.

LENOX OPENS ANNUAL BATTLE OF FLOWERS

By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT.

A battle of flowers is on among the fashionables making up the Lenox Summer colony and on August 11th will be fought out to the last fragrant petal by those who have entered the contest. All the choicest blooms of the great conservatories and gardens of Lenox will be on exhibition and a grand display it will make. The occasion is the midsummer display of the Lenox Horticultural Society and all the well known society women who have taken up the fad of raising their own flowers will have exhibits.

Mrs. John Sloan, who is noted for her handsome orchids, will show those blooms; the Charles Laniers, their sweet peas; Mrs. George Westinghouse, her handsome roses and carnations, and Miss Adele Kneeland and the Misses Cornelia and Charlotte Barnes, all the finest they grow in their gardens.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Murchie are sailing for Europe from New York this week and will be present for about two months. They will return for the late Autumn to their Summer home at Ipswich.

The younger members of the North Shore Summer colony are rejoicing over the expected arrival from Europe this week of the two handsome and popular Vincent Club girls, Olivia and Alice Thorndike, who with their mother went abroad in March. They will go immediately to their fine estate at West Manchester to join Mr. Thorndike.

This is the day that Jamestown, that delightful little Summer resort just across the bay from Newport, has selected for an afternoon of water sports. It promises to be a lively event and cottagers from Newport and other fashionable resorts are motoring over to be on hand. This evening there will be dancing at the Jamestown casino, followed by a cotillion.

Miss Jeanne Wallach is to be the next notable debutante of the season and will be presented at Newport this month at a coming out party given by her mother, Mrs. Barger-Wallach, at their Newport villa.

* * *

The great attraction at Newport yesterday afternoon was a roller skating party at the naval training station, given by the officers of the station. Many of the Summer residents attended, among them Mr. and Mrs. Elisha Dyer, Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer, Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Hillhouse, Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish, Miss Lotta Robinson, Mrs. James B. Haggin, Mr. and Mrs. Newton Adams, Miss Laura Swan, Mrs. Hugh D. Auchincloss, Commodore and Mrs. Arthur Curtis James, Miss James, Mrs. Lewis Cass Ledyard, the Misses Morris, Mr. and Mrs. R. Manson Smith, Mrs. George S. Scott, Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Brown, Miss Brown, Miss Alice Little, Mr. and Mrs. Paul A. Andrews, Mr. and Mrs. Walter B. Andrews, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Stevens, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney J. Colford, Jr., Miss Katherine B. Lawrence, Mr. and Mrs. William G. Roelker, Miss Eleanor Roelker, Miss Margaret R. McKim, Mr. and Mrs. John R. Drexel, Miss Rose Grosvenor, Miss Julia Sands, Mr. and Mrs. Lorillard Spencer, Jr., Miss Eleanor G. Brown, Mrs. Frederick P. Sands and James T. Woodward.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene V. R. Thayer, Jr., of Boston arrived in Newport yesterday from their home in Boston.

Among the recent arrivals at Narragansett Pier who are registered at the Casino are Quincy A. Shaw and G. G. Amory.

The stockholders of the Newport Casino have elected Senator George Peabody Wetmore, H. A. C. Thayer, Nathaniel Thayer and George L. Rives governors of the Casino for four years.

Miss Maude Wetmore leaves Newport the latter part of the week for a stay of about a week in the White Mountains.

Recent arrivals at Bar Harbor are Mr. and Mrs. Boogee Oumiroff and Mrs. Gordon Shaw of Berlin, Germany. They have engaged the Poplars villa at Newport.

Among the contributors to the local police pension fund of Newport are Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, Mrs. H. Mortimer Brooks, Mrs. William Watts Sherman, Miss Alice Keteltas, Mrs. Gardiner B. Berry, Mrs. C. P. Williams, Miss Rose A. Grosvenor, Mrs. Paul Dahlgren, Mrs. Henry Barton Jacobs, Mrs. Sarah Titus Zabriskie, and Miss Georgina G. King.

Miss Mabel Boardman of Manchester, sister-in-law of Senator Winthrop Murray Crane, is the centre of interest and the recipient of many congratulations to-day on account of the signal honor which has been shown her by the Italian government. Yesterday Miss Boardman received from the Marquis de Montagliari a gold crown in recognition of her services in behalf of the Italian victims of the recent earthquake. The crown is a reproduction of the ancient civic crown of the Romans, and is made of oak leaves and acorns in solid gold. The inscription on the crown is: "To Mabel Boardman of the American Red Cross, from the Italian government, as a debt of gratitude, 1908-1909."

Another recognition of Miss Boardman's work in connection with the Red Cross work came from President Taft some time ago for her services in the Philippines. The token of esteem and gratitude which was presented by the President was a diamond studded watch and chain.

Miss M. P. Tilden of Brookline has gone to Stockbridge and is staying at Heaton Hall.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. William A. Putnam and family have left their cottage at Southampton, L. I., where they have been spending the early part of the Summer. They have gone to their camp in the Adirondacks for a number of weeks, but will return to Southampton in the Autumn.

Miss Kitty Lawrence is spending the Summer with her grandfather, Charles Lanier, who is at Allen Winden, his lovely country place in Lenox.

Mrs. Larz Anderson is in Webster, N. H., where she is the guest of her mother, Mrs. George Perkins, and Larz Anderson is paying a visit to his mother, Mrs. Nicholas Anderson, whose Summer place is at Bar Harbor.

Among the prominent women of the North Shore Summer colony who are patronesses of the large charity entertainment to be given at Magnolia next Monday evening, August 9, are Mrs. John Hays Hammond, Mrs. Eben D. Jordan, Miss Adele G. Thayer, Mrs. Carroll Livingstone, Mrs. Charles R. Hayden, Mrs. Horace B. Stanton, Miss Marianna Guild, the Misses Loring and Mrs. John H. Childs. The entertainment is to be given in the interests of the Boston Floating Hospital, and is in charge of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Noble Burnham, who are spending the season in Magnolia. Mrs. Burnham was Miss Eleanor Howard Waring before her marriage last June at Wood's Hole. Mr. Burnham is the sculptor whose lecture on "The Processes of Sculpture" has already been announced.

Mrs. James J. Storrow leaves New York to-day for a trip abroad. The Storrow home is in Lincoln, Mass.

Mrs. Arthur E. Grannis will be the guest of her mother, Mrs. Oscar Iasigi, of Clovercroft, Stockbridge, during the absence of Miss Nora Iasigi in Europe.

Mrs. Eben S. Draper and Miss Dorothy Draper have planned to leave for Europe next month.

EXCELLENT BILLS AT THEATRES

The bill presented this week at Keith's Theatre would be one of remark even in mid-season. Maude Rochez with her troupe of trained monkeys furnishes one of the best and most laughable entertainments conceivable in the farce "Amateur Night in a Monkey Music Hall," which is a take-off on the well-known vaudeville favorite, "A Night in a London Music Hall." The monkeys are the whole show in their stunt, at least so far as any one before the scenes can detect. They are trained to their parts like clock work.

Last night the crowds who saw the performance laughed themselves almost to the point of further exertion being painful. The Fadettes, led by Mrs. Caroline B. Nichols, were given another splendid reception, and they responded by producing a fine program. The McNaughtons, two English comedians, are very funny. Their part of the performance is a work of art. Howard Truesdell and his company, in the skit, "A Corner in Hair," are fully up to the high grade evening's entertainment.

Orpheum.

"Merely Mary Ann," a charming play in four acts by Israel Zangwill, is the offering this week of the Lindsay Morison players at the Orpheum Theatre. Audiences are delighted at the performances.

Mary Sanders is charming as Mary Ann, the slavey, in a London lodging house. She falls in love with Lancelot (Howell Hansel), a talented composer, who belongs to an aristocratic family, but has no money. Their courtship goes on to the point of an elopement, and then comes the news that Mary is an heiress.

On learning this Lancelot refuses to elope with the girl, being too proud to take away the rich girl, where he would have willingly carried her off had she not a penny. They separate, but the story has a delightful ending, when the reunion of the young couple comes as the termination of the play.

Globe Theatre.

The Flavios, two European gymnasts, are one of the best features on the bill at the Globe Theatre this week. Their feats of strength and skill are seldom excelled on the stage. The Clevelands, a popular team, give an entertaining singing and talking novelty. Dotson and Lucas, colored singers and dancers and talkers, keep the audience keenly interested. Little Ted, who calls himself the "Watchcharm comedian," gets a good hand. Jack Manley and Billy Chase have new pictorial songs. The moving picture views are the latest thing. The song and picture bill changes Thursday.

Bowdoin Square.

They are playing "Escaped from Sing Sing" at the Bowdoin Square Theatre this week, with all the stirring scenes given as much force as the stock company players and realistic stage effects can produce. The result is a succession of thoroughly satisfying thrills for the audiences. Frederick Van Rensselaer, who takes the part of the hero, shows versatility. Charlotte Hunt is charming as Alice Van Stone. The other members of the company give strong support. On Thursday, August 12, there will be a benefit to Edwin Denison, in which "Beware of Men" will be given, with all the favorite players appearing.

New Palace.

Corbett and Forrester, in their comedy sketch, "The Lady Lawyer," are headliners at the New Palace Theatre for the week. Other good acts include La Belle Troupe of comedy wire artists, Chester and Jones, the singers and dancers; Blanche Bairo, known as the "Tailormade Girl"; Frank Howard, in stories and songs, and Gertrude Mann, the sweet singer. Moving pictures add much to the bill.

Austin & Stone's Museum.

Jovine's singers and dancers, a company of twenty vocalists, are giving rare entertainment at Austin & Stone's Museum. The principals are highly trained and have many new and novel dances. Their singing is equally delightful. There is a well-organized chorus. The Manhattan Minstrel Maids are putting on a breezy bill in the Museum Theatre, with new songs and jokes.

Hub Theatre.

Wells and Wells, Henry H. Myers, blackface comedian, and the Hennings, introducing one of the most expert women jugglers in the varieties, are features on the bill at the Hub Theatre. New illustrated songs and motion pictures from Miles Brothers' films add to the long program. There will be a mid-week change of bill on Thursday.

Columbia to Open.

The Columbia Theatre will open for the 1909-10 season on Saturday night, August 14, with Dave Marion and his Jardin de Paris Girls.

Grand Opera House.

The Grand Opera House will open for the season next Saturday night with a strong presentation of "Convict 999." The company includes Captain Kelley's troupe of Zouaves in wall-scaling and ladder-climbing.

Theatre Premier.

The classic drama, "Quo Vadis," dramatized from Sienkewicz's wonderful novel of that name, is being presented at the Theatre Premier this week on the cameraphone. It marks a new epoch in the moving picture world. This powerful play is reproduced with all the characters and scenic effects, the actors speaking the lines of the original production. The scene where the Christians are condemned by Nero to be fed to the lions and their songs of praise make impressive pictures. New motion pictures and songs add to the bill.

Paragon Park.

The Shriners of Aleppo Temple are sending congratulations to Manager Dodge of Paragon Park to-day for the fun he provided them at their pilgrimage to Paragon Park yesterday. The Shriners owned the park for the afternoon and evening. They overflowed the palm garden, held a banquet, enjoyed the free vaudeville and other attractions from one end of the park to the other.

Norumbega Park.

"The Brinkley Girls" is getting hearty welcome at the open-air theatre in Norumbega Park. This merry musical piece is based on the old tangle of mistaken identity, tied up in new and diverting manner. The "Brinkley Girl" is shown into the wrong garden and from that mistake rise endless complications, which are straightened out at the finish. There is an adequate company, both in principals and chorus. Musical numbers, tuneful and of good composition, abound in the score.

New York Trolley.

Combination trolley and steamer trips to New York are highly patronized this Summer. A special trolley leaves Post-office square at 2:30 p. m. daily, except Sunday, for Providence or Fall River. Connections are made with the night boats for New York.

North Shore Route

The North Shore route to Gloucester and Cape Ann provides a splendid sail out of Boston. Beverly and Gloucester, where much interest now centres, make good objective points for a day's outing. The steamer Cape Ann sails from Central Wharf at 10 a. m. week days and 10:15 a. m. Sundays, for Gloucester.

Cape Cod Boats.

The naval display off Provincetown continues to draw tourists by the thousands. The steamer Cape Cod sails from Boston to Provincetown at 9 a. m. week days and 9:30 a. m. Sundays for Provincetown. A fine view of the battleships is obtained from the steamer.

Steamer King Philip.

The steamer King Philip, which sails at 10 a. m. daily from Commercial wharf for the deep-sea fishing grounds, carries scores of anglers, both men and women. Good catches are reported.

Joy Line Travel.

There is heavy travel between Boston and New York this vacation season on the Joy line, which gives a combination rail and boat trip. Details may be obtained at the city ticket office, No. 214 Washington street.

Satellite Fishing Trips.

The fishing steamer Satellite, Captain Sorenson, goes to the good fishing grounds for deep-sea catches daily, sailing at 10 a. m. from Central wharf.

Bass Point Boats.

Boats of the Bass Point and Nahant line, sailing on nearly hourly schedule from Otis wharf, give a bracing trip across the harbor to one of the most delightful recreation regions near Boston. Summer theatre, music, hotel service and other attractions are found there.

Point of Pines.

Only thirty minutes from Boston, the Point of Pines is drawing many amusement seekers this Summer. Automobile parties find the place desirable, with good cuisine and other attractions.

To the Provinces.

Now that the Maritime Provinces are at the height of the Summer season there is heavy travel there from Boston and New England. The steamers of the Dominion Atlantic Railway Steamship Line, sailing daily except Saturday, give invigorating trips to Yarmouth.

HOT CONTEST IS ON TO WIN CHOWDER PRIZES

Clam chowder recipes continue to pour in on Mr. John T. Hicks, and if he does not find one in the lot which will fill the bill, it will not be the fault of the New England housewives or New England chefs. The recipes come from every point in New England and show an infinite number of varieties of this famous dish. All are competing for the $5 prize offered by Mr. Hicks for the best recipe, and the additional $5 offered by the BOSTON AMERICAN for the second best recipe. Following are a few of the recipes received:

SAYS IT'S "BEST EVER."

Here is the best ever in the chowder line: Slice one-quarter pound fat salt pork into a spider and fry brown; remove the pieces and brown delicately three or four onions sliced thin in the fat; put into the kettle you are to cook the chowder in and add three or four potatoes, cut in dice or sliced thin; add one quart of clams which have been carefully looked over and the tough part separated from the soft and chopped fine. Cover the potatoes, onions and clams with hot water and clam juice; season with a little pepper and salt and cook till potatoes are tender, then add one and a half pints of good milk, let come to a boil and thicken with one good tablespoon of flour, moistened to pour well, with milk, and let cook a few minutes. Dip some hard crackers in cold water for a minute, put in tureen and then pour on the chowder. The secret of a good chowder lies in having the clams freshly opened.

RECIPE FROM HANOVER.

Take about three quarts clams, wash thoroughly, boil, pick out and cut off black part of heads; try out two slices of salt pork; take quart of potatoes, two small onions and slice thin; now put potatoes and onions, with little pepper and salt, in the clam water and add water to cover, if needed; let boil until tender; have three crackers that have been soaked in milk, add crackers and clams when done and let all boil up together and remove from fire.

GENUINE MARBLEHEAD KIND.

Marblehead is famous for its clam chowders and here is the way they are prepared: Cut one-quarter pound fat pork into small pieces and fry brown; then add three pints boiling water; add two medium-sized onions that have been cut fine and six or seven potatoes that have been sliced. Let boil until potatoes are done and add one quart of clams that have been thoroughly cleaned and the liquor strained; add pepper and salt to taste and after the clams have boiled five minutes, add three pints of milk and one-half pound crackers split in halves and you have the genuine Marblehead clam chowder.

No. 174 Pleasant street, Marblehead.

CHOWDER WITH PARSLEY.

Butter a deep tin basin, strew it thickly with grated bread crumbs or soaked crackers, sprinkle some pepper over and bits of butter the size of a hickory nut, and, if liked, some finely chopped parsley, then put a double layer of clams, seasoned with pepper; put bits of butter over, then another layer of soaked crackers, after that clams and bits of butter, sprinkle pepper over; add a cup of milk, and lastly a layer of soaked crackers; turn a plate over the basin and bake in a hot oven for three-quarters of an hour. Use half a pound of butter with fifty clams.

WINE IN THIS CHOWDER.

Here is the way I prepare the famous Squantum Club clam chowder: Cut one-half pound salt pork into small squares and fry brown, cut six onions and fry in butter, boil and mash six large potatoes, peel six tomatoes and cut them in small quarters, soak six Bent's water crackers in cold water, when soft rub them to a fine pulp; chop fine one spray of parsley, as much thyme, barley and sage, grind one teaspoonful of whole black pepper, grate one-half nutmeg; open one peck of soft clams, use belly part and string only, bring them to a boil, strain and put the bellies aside until time to serve the chowder, as this must be kept whole and appetizing. Now take a new agate or a two-gallon bean pot and put your carefully prepared articles in layers, pour over that the two quarts of clams juice and one of water, cover and let simmer for two hours; when ready add four lumps of sugar melted in the juice of two lemons, and a tumbler of good old Madeira wine; add carefully the bellies of the clams. Stir a little and your chowder is ready.

PRESENTS TWO RECIPES.

I have two recipes for you, No. 1 being what is commonly called Plum Island chowder, the other being Cape clam chowder.

RECIPE NO. 1.

Cut in dice one-half pound fat salt pork, fry brown in spider, remove scraps of pork and turn fat into kettle in which you are to cook chowder; peel four large onions, cut fine, drop into fat in kettle, cover with hot water, season with salt and pepper to taste, boil ten or fifteen minutes; now peel eight or ten medium-sized potatoes, slice one-quarter inch thick, add them to your onions and cover with more water, perhaps a quart; cook twenty minutes more; take one quart of clams right out of shell, wash them thoroughly in at least two waters, the last time drain them into a pan and sprinkle with one cup of pastry flour and stir until the flour is well mixed with the clams; now add these to the mixture in kettle and cook about five minutes, or until it is quite thick; this completes the body of the chowder and will keep for several days on ice in Summer; when needed, take out four or five ladlefuls, put in pan, and add one quart of sweet milk which has been scalded; stir until it is well mixed; add a piece of butter, also six or seven crackers, split; let stand a moment and serve.

RECIPE NO. 2.

Chop fifty clams, peel and slice ten raw potatoes, cut into dice, six onions and one-half pound fat salt pork, slice six tomatoes (if canned, use a coffee cupful), add a pound pilot crackers. First put pork in kettle and try out, partially cook onions in pork fat, remove the mess from kettle and put on plate; make layers of the ingredients, season with salt and pepper; cover with water and boil one and one-half hours, adding chopped parsley to taste.

MRS. C. M. HOLDEN.

THIS TASTES DELICIOUS.

This clam chowder tastes delicious to us; I hope it will to you.

Try out three slices of fat salt pork, then cut up two large onions and fry a light brown; slice three large potatoes in a kettle with enough water to cover; when almost cooked add your fried onions; clean one quart of clams (always taking out black substance in stomach), add these to potatoes and onions and cook five minutes; now add three (3) pints of milk to the above and let boil; add a few crackers, season with pepper and salt and serve.

MARY E. MURPHY.
No. 74 Waverly street, Everett.

FROM IPSWICH CLAMS.

This is real old-fashioned New England chowder. First get some clams freshly dug from Ipswich Beach; have about three pints shocked and save the liquor; fry four slices of fat salt pork, slice one good-sized onion and fry with the pork; when fried a nice brown strain into kettle with three pints sliced potatoes, clams and liquor; cook until potatoes are done; have three pints milk and let soak eight common crackers for five minutes; add the crackers and milk and let come to a boil; add salt and pepper to taste. Put a piece of butter half size of an egg in soup tureen and serve at once.

MRS. A. M. DODGE.
Essex street, Hamilton.

WOULD RATHER COOK IT.

I would rather cook this clam chowder for you than write about it. It's grand. Get one-half peck of clams, wash and steam them; pick over clean; slice about six potatoes, not very large, two good-sized onions, and boil; while boiling fry some nice pork, about three slices, and turn into the stew when about half done; then let come to a boil; put about half pint of milk, pepper and salt to taste, with plenty of clams.

MRS. J. H. MURPHY.
No. 4 Benton street, Middleboro.

GENERALLY PRAISED.

My chowder is generally praised, but I would rather cook it for you, Mr. Hicks, than write the recipe. Here is my formula: Buy one-half peck of Ipswich sand clams, shock the clams yourself; one-quarter pound of salt pork, heat knife, cut pork in small scraps, put in kettle, let fat fry out, then take out scraps, put one and one-half quarts of sliced raw potatoes in kettle and enough water to cover well, let boil till most done and then put in fresh shocked clams, let boil steady for ten minutes. Then put in two quarts of good, sweet milk, season with salt and pepper. Then take fresh common crackers, break in halves, put in, then serve.

'UNCLE JOE'S' MEDITATIONS ON SUMMER

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—The Summer meditations of Uncle Joe are peaceful and refreshingly cool. The perplexities of the Senate did not disturb him one bit to-day.

"This is a good place to be," said the Speaker as he sniffed at a slashing breeze whipping through the wide windows of his big room on the east terrace.

"It is cool to-day. It may be hot other days, but it is cool now and we should be content. It is true that I would rather be home. I have a little business to attend to, but that can wait. I would like to hear the crowing of the chickens in the very cool of the most early morning. I mean the crowing of the roosters. Hens usually don't crow; they cluck. Also, I would like to hear the squealing and grunting of the pigs and the bellowing of the bulls, if they will only bellow. I really miss these things because I am used to them. But it is very pleasant here."

Golf?

"Do you play golf, Mr. Speaker?"

"No, I don't play golf. I think I regard it as better than no exercise. It is a game for middle aged persons, and I am too young to take it up. Perhaps I will some day.

"I like to read in the Summer. I like to read good, solid books about the acts of men who have done things. I like Gibbon's 'Rome.' Another book I like is 'Plutarch's Lives.' That's a great book.

"But, after all, the best literature in the least possible space is the Bible. I used to read it more than I do now, but I read it often. One can skip the long names and some of the hard parts, but the grandest parts of the Bible one never tires of reading. Some day I will tell you why I am specially fond of Matthew and John. What a great character was Isaiah!

Poker!

"And in Summer I like to play poker. Not for money, but to stimulate the imagination. For instance, I like to call the blue checks one billion dollars each, the reds about half a billion, and the whites one hundred thousand dollars. Of course, there is no such value in the game. It is make-believe.

"In a good stiff game with good fellows you may win one thousand billion dollars. After you have won that much money in your mind is when you want to get the real enjoyment out of the game. You can smoke a cigar just before going to bed and think what you can buy with one thousand million dollars. That's immense! You could give every man, woman and child something.

"You could buy the good things from all the bad people and give them all to the good people. And the more you dream while you are awake of giving away all that you have won the grander you feel, and if you are careful you can go to bed without realizing it isn't true, and in the morning you will be so busy that you won't mind. That's what I call good Summer recreation."

A Want Advt. Is Often the Road to Fortune.

BRISK TONE CONTINUES IN REAL ESTATE

The real estate market still continues to hold a brisk tone and a good number of sales of city and suburban properties were reported to-day.

In the South End the frame buildings and 6,540 square feet of land at Nos. 652-658 Shawmut avenue, corner of Nos. 26-30 Arnold street, assessed for a total of $19,500, have been sold by Jacob Jacobs to Jeremiah P. O'Brien. The land is rated for $11,500.

In the West End Samuel L. Dana has sold to Margaret Quinn et al. the three-story brick house and 1,000 square feet of land at Nos. 29-31 Blossom street, corner of Parkman street and Seabury place. The estate taxed for a total of $53,000, of which $3,800 is on the land.

William J. Kurch et al., trustees, have sold to Daniel Bernhard the frame house and 3,069 square feet of land at No. 7 Sarsfield street, near Tremont street, Roxbury, taxed on a total valuation of $7,300, of which $5,300 is on the land.

In the same suburb the frame dwelling and 3,223 square feet of land at No. 56 Norfolk street, near Hampden street, have been sold by Charles M. Farnee to William Kaufman. This property is assessed for a total of $4,300, $2,200 being on the land.

Patrick O'Hearn has sold to Gabriel M. Gordon a lot of land, containing 8,797 square feet, on Columbia road, corner of Stanwood street. The land is rated for a total of $5,700.

In the same suburb a lot of land on Washington street, at the corner of Harvard avenue, containing 7,941 square feet, and assessed for $2,400, has been sold by Miriam E. S. Dunn to Margaret Boretti.

George Gramlich has sold to Percy Sharpe the frame house and 3,559 square feet of land at No. 4 Boylston place, off Boylston street, West Roxbury. This property is taxed on a total valuation of $3,400, of which $600 is on the land.

PLASTERERS ARE MUCH IN DEMAND

While no settlement has been made with the sixteen firms that go to make up the Master Plasterers' Association, the 500 members of the union have procured work from independent firms and builders at the new wage rate of $5.20 for eight hours, and Edward J. McGivern, the union business agent, to-day had more calls for union men than he could fill. It is reported that a meeting of the master plasterers is to be held either to-night or to-morrow, at which time they are expected to reconsider their action which led up to the strike when refusing the higher wage rate, but the officers of the association refuse to confirm the report.

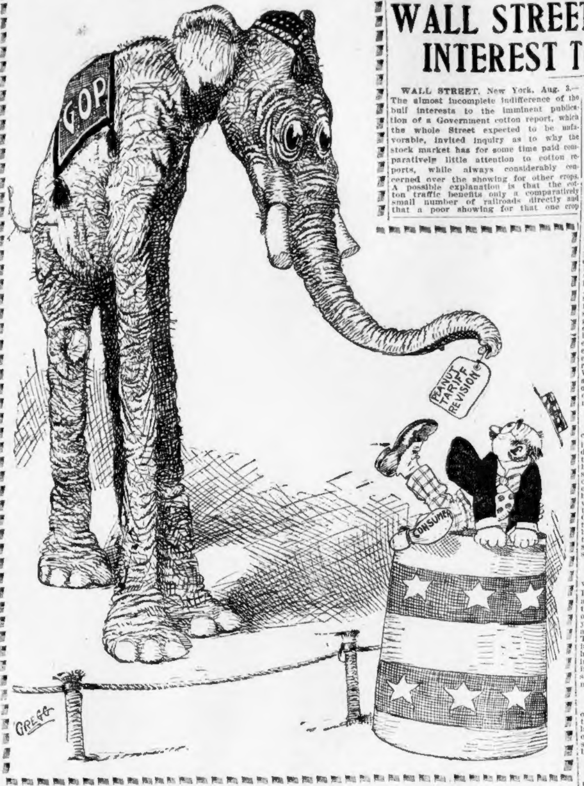
BIG DEMAND FOR LINCOLN PENNIES

There was a good-sized "run" on the sub-treasury office at the Federal Building to-day to get the first of the new "Lincoln" pennies. Two hundred persons lined up outside the window at 9 o'clock, one hour before the office was opened, and by 10 o'clock there were 100 more. There were 50,000 of the new coins to be had, and by limiting the allotments, fifty to an individual and 500 to a bank, the officials met the "run" and supplied every one who applied, with a few to spare.

INSURANCE COMPANY RECEIVERS REPORT

The International Trust Company, receivers for the Firemen's Fire Insurance Company, to-day filed its final report in the Supreme Court. The company became insolvent in 1895, and since that time the trust company has received and paid $473,826 in settling its affairs.

FEEDING THE CONSUMER



ALABAMA HOUSE IS SOLIDLY FOR AN INCOME TAX

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Aug. 3.—The House of Representatives has unanimously adopted the income tax amendment to the United States constitution. To-day or to-morrow the measure will be acted upon by the Senate.

Col. Thomas L. Bulger, representative from Dadeville, who introduced the measure, reviewed the conditions which have brought about the necessity for a constitutional change. He added: "Under the protection of the Republican tariff laws the rich have grown richer, and the poor poorer, and the consumer must bear the burdens without hope in the future.

The sixteenth amendment to the Constitution of the United States will re-affirm and re-establish the Jeffersonian doctrine, "Equal rights to all and special privileges to none.

"The rich and poor will contribute and receive alike. Contentment, happiness and prosperity will be seen and felt on every hand throughout the length and breadth of our great country."

One member asked if a federal income tax would affect persons drawing moderate salaries, and when told that it probably would not, he voted with all the others in favor of the resolution.

CINDERELLA HIT AT WONDERLAND

The Cinderella production at Wonderland is presented twice daily, the time being 3:30 and 8:30 P. M. This gives the little folks and the visitors from long distances an opportunity to enjoy the greatest free show of years at their individual convenience. The afternoon performance especially helps the little ones who have to be tucked into bed in the early evenings. Besides, children under twelve accompanied by adults are admitted free to Wonderland Park up to six o'clock.

The Wonderland Park restaurant, roomy, cool and quiet, is also so reasonable in prices that the patronage has increased to magnificent proportions. The public has also discovered that the Wonderland ballroom is one of the best in the country.

The rides and shows in the list of paid attractions are giving more and more for the money. New talent has been added to the Salome production, new poses at the Golden Graces, extra features at the Girl Minstrels and a new weekly bill at the Vaudeville.

The last of the SUNDAY AMERICAN free tickets are being used to-day. They give park admission and admission to the Golden Graces absolutely free, with twelve half tickets worth five cents each to the other leading park attractions.

WHITE CITY AROUSES DUE APPRECIATION

How many visitors to the White City, Worcester, appreciate the fact that the park possess the finest rides in the country, not excelled in any metropolis in the land, such as the Mammoth Chutes, the Scenic Railway, the Airships, "Hy Nichol's Jungle" and the Flying Horses. Then there are the score of paid shows, booths, the esplanade and the wonderful central lagoon. One is not likely to appreciate great things found at home, but all visitors from a distance agree that the White City, Worcester, overhanging the lake, a five-cent ride out of Worcester proper, is one of the most attractive parks in all the country.

The SUNDAY AMERICAN gives forty-five cents worth of free amusements at White City every week.

CLOSE OPTION ON IMMIGRANT STATION HERE

Colonel George B. Billings, commissioner of Immigration for the port of Boston, to-day received instructions from Charles Nagel, secretary of the Department of Commerce and Labor, to at once close the option now held on the Jeffries Point Yacht Club property and the lot immediately adjoining in East Boston. This is the site on which the United States Government is to erect the new $250,000 immigration station.

These options were secured some time ago by Joseph Conry for the government at Colonel Billings's request. This location has been the site which Colonel Billings from the very first has been anxious to secure for the new immigration station.

Secretary Nagel and Assistant Secretary MacHarg were at first very strongly in favor of building the station on Governor's Island, but were finally dissuaded by Colonel Billings and other government officials here.

Colonel Billings, immediately on the receipt of Secretary Nagel's letter of instruction, telephoned to Mr. Conry, who hastened to the immigration office. Here he was directed by Colonel Billings to close the deal for the property as soon as possible, acting in conjunction with the United States District Attorney's office here.

The land secured by the government in this deal includes 15,000 square feet of land above high water and 37,000 square feet of flats owned by the Jeffries Point Yacht Club and 18,000 square feet of land adjacent, privately owned.

The price to be paid for the land is $41,000, of which the yacht club receives $34,000. The property has a frontage on Boston harbor of 150 feet and entrances from Marginal and Sumner streets.

Colonel Billings was especially pleased to be able to close the deal for the land to-day, as he starts at once on a vacation of one month in Nova Scotia and wanted to have everything arranged before he departed.

ENTIRE FAMILY IS SAVED FROM FIRE

MANSFIELD, Aug. 3.—Seven people were rescued from a fire that destroyed the house and grocery store of Angelo Pezole on North Main street early to-day. The fire was discovered by Edward Wynn, who sounded an alarm and then, with John H. Furlong, rushed into the house and carried out Pezole, his wife and five little children, who were asleep and nearly overcome by smoke. Pezole and his wife went into hysterics, as they believed the five children had perished in the flames and only became rational when the children were located in the home of a neighbor, unhurt.

WITHOUT FOOD OR WATER THREE DAYS

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—After three days in a locked box car with nothing to eat and not a drop to drink, Charles Robinson, No. 142 Cottage avenue, Boston, was rescued to-day by railroad detectives. He was taken to the J. Hood Wright Hospital by Doctor Dubois in a critical condition. Robinson, who is a steamfitter, says he left Boston Saturday. He was found in a car on the New York Central freight tracks at 12th avenue and 130th street rolling in agony. His groans attracted attention.

YOUNG MRS. ROCKEFELLER A SUFFRAGIST

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., say the suffragists, is pointing their way. Her political activity in the campaign her husband is waging to elect the school trustees whom he and his father have selected for the Pocantico Hills community, is doing as much for their cause, they declare, as the direct energy that Mrs. Clarence H. Mackay is expending from her Madison Square tower suffrage headquarters.

Mrs. Rockefeller is not an avowed disciple of the "votes for women" movement as yet, but the determined aggressiveness she is displaying in the Westchester election is accepted by the leaders of the suffragist movement as proof that she will be an enrolled worker in their ranks ultimately.

In the endeavor to elect her husband's candidate, Mrs. Rockefeller is making a house-to-house canvass of the community. Her big touring car is a familiar sight in the driveways of the palatial homes that dot that multi-millionaire settlement, and she is said to have persuaded the wives of practically all the big land owners that the direction of the schools, whose interiors their children never see, should be intrusted to what the Pocantico folks call "the Rockefeller ticket."

Her activities are centred upon the election of the president of the board of trustees and so thorough has been her work that the opposition practically has quit.

There were thousands in the weekly party of the Sunday American Outing Club at Nantasket Beach and its wonderful amusement places. The balance of the free tickets clipped from last Sunday's BOSTON AMERICAN will be used next Friday. See next Sunday's paper for more of them. They will do you good and save you money. These free tickets save you half fare to the Lyric Theatre, Ye Old Mill, Grant's Roller Coaster and the Flying Horses. Every coupon represents five cents. To go the rounds of the beach they save each holder twenty cents. Try them if you have not yet joined the merry club. Get them in the AMERICAN next Sunday and use them according to directions.

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS; LATEST FINANCIAL NEWS

WALL STREET NEWS OF INTEREST TO INVESTORS

WALL STREET, New York, Aug. 3.—The almost incomplete indifference of the bull interests to the imminent publication of a Government cotton report, which the whole Street expected to be unfavorable, invited inquiry as to why the stock market has for some time paid comparatively little attention to cotton reports, while always considerably concerned over the showing for other crops. A possible explanation is that the cotton traffic benefits only a comparatively small number of railroads directly and that a poor showing for that one crop may be more than offset by the reports on all other crops a few days later.

$ $ $

The upward movement in security prices, and especially in the prices of the stock of the standard railroad companies, strongly suggests that in the not distant future a number of the roads will avail themselves of an opportunity to obtain new capital without increasing absolutely fixed charges. Take New York Central for example. The road, as is well known, will need to obtain a large supply of funds before long. Until recently it looked as if bonds would be sold in order to secure the money required, but the rise in the stock to a level above 140 makes it probable that the financing will be done in some other way than by an issue of straight long term bonds. The time is probably not far distant when it will not only be possible for the road to sell stock, but, while fixing the price well above par, to make the rights sufficiently attractive to be eagerly availed of by every stockholder. Announcement at this time of an issue of stock would probably have an adverse effect, for New York Central is not yet seasoned to its present level, but let the public get accustomed to a price above 140, let the earnings continue to improve as they have been improving, let the management give evidence of such efficiency as should be expected from those in charge of the operations of one of America's greatest railroads, and it will be only a little time until Wall Street will be ready to take almost any amount of new stock at an issue price of 125 or better. With the dividend at 5 per cent., the road would thus be obtaining money on better than a 5 per cent. basis.

$ $ $

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company recently announced that after a certain date it would carry only trucks on the lower decks of its ferryboats. This means that the opening of the McAdoo tunnels must have reduced by half the number of passengers carried on the boats. One Jersey commuter said that the McAdoo tube just opened saves him thirty minutes each way between his office and home. The Pennsylvania expects to have trains running through Manhattan Island from Jersey City to Long Island by November. More than $100,000,000 of investment that has been a dead weight on the company will then become productive. It is none too soon to begin discounting this fact in the stock market.

$ $ $

Opening of the new tunnel to Brooklyn, which was supposed to be an injury to Brooklyn Rapid Transit, is proving a great advantage. The Brooklyn street car system earned more than $175,000 net in July of this year above the same month in last year. The year 1909 will show a total of at least $1,200,000 net increase over 1908. This means that the dividend already being paid will be justified by returns. There has been talk for some time of an increase in the near future. Such a thing is not improbable, although there is no official sanction for the statement that one will be made.

$ $ $

American Smelting & Refining has not only made a new record for the year, but the dealings in it are on an unusually large scale, and the character of the buying obtained credence for the rumors that a substantial increase in the dividend would be made at the next declaration.

$ $ $

Expectation of a fairly good annual report has something to do with the rise in Colorado Fuel, which has reached to a new high record for the year. It is contended that the Rockefeller interests have introduced some changes of policy and that the management is the most efficient ever possessed by the company.

BIG MARKET IN MINING LIST

STATE STREET, Aug. 3.—Mining shares again had a good market this forenoon and those affiliated with Calumet & Hecla almost had a runaway market. Notable was the five point advance in Superior Copper to 62½ after as many points advance yesterday. The speculative fever is on and is apparently growing. The trend of the whole market was upward.

La Salle, which has been dormant for some time, spurted 1⅝ to 16⅛ and Calumet & Hecla itself was up 15 points from last night's closing bid to 675. Allouez rose 2½ to 47½ and Centennial 3¾ to 36¾. Gossip this morning said that the latter was making almost as good a showing as Allouez.

Amalgamated was less conspicuous but rose over a point to 85⅜. Isle Royale was favored with a 1¾ rise to 30¾ and North Lake rose 1⅛ to 10¾. American Zinc made a top on the present rise at 32½. The greatest activity was in the above-mentioned stocks, yet others were strong. Osceola, on a few buying orders, shot up 6 to 145. North Butte was less active at from 57⅞ to 59 cents.

Curb trading was of good volume and at higher levels. Davis-Daly was an active feature up to 7¼, and Rhode Island Coal, which was traded on the New York curb for the first time, was strong at 7¼@7⅜. Laramie rose 15 cents to $1 and Acme rose from 10 to 15 cents.

PENNSYLVANIA STOCK STRONG

By T. C. SHOTWELL.

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—Stocks were somewhat irregular at the opening to-day, but a few standard issues showed great strength. Pennsylvania was active at a fractional advance, and Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, New York Central and Missouri Pacific were strong features of the railroad list. Among the industrials Pressed Steel Car preferred was a leader, with an advance of 1½ points on dividend talk.

The advance in Pennsylvania is due to the opening of the McAdoo tunnels under the Hudson and to the announcement that the Pennsylvania expects to be running trains from Jersey City under Manhattan Island to Long Island by November next.

The company has been carrying more

London was slightly low on American stocks to-day.

The cotton market reacted about 15 points from the highest points of yesterday. Trading on the curb was active, with silver shares neglected and low-priced copper stocks the leaders.

TO THE PEOPLE OF NEW ENGLAND

And Especially All Persons Owning the Stocks of

ACME CONSOLIDATED
LARAMIE, HAHNS PEAK & PACIFIC RAILWAY
BOSWYOCOLO COMPANY

A little over two years ago, or just previous to the panic which has covered the last two years, and from which the business world is moderately recovering from day to day, I called the attention of the public to

Acme Consolidated at 10 Cents Per Share
Laramie, Hahns Peak & Pacific at $1.00 Per Share
Boswyocolo Company at 10 Cents Per Share

At that time I made certain predictions as to market prices, based on what I believed good business sense, but an unforeseen factor, one which brought financial disaster and trouble to almost every corner of the world, and utterly destroyed public confidence, came upon us in the shape of the panic, and although the three companies named to which I had called public attention continued their business and progress, growing more valuable each day, market prices in sympathy with general conditions, sought a level in common with all other stocks.

BUT

I believe we are just entering the gates which shall lead us down the avenue of prosperity to the most satisfactory business conditions this country has ever enjoyed, and at this time I wish to say a word in this public way which it is impossible to do in any other manner as to my personal position and some of the facts and conditions affecting their future.

CERTAIN OF MY POSITION

While I have personally spent enough of my time right upon the ground covered by these corporations to be perfectly familiar with every detail, while many of those interested have visited the properties and are thoroughly familiar with them in every way, that there might be no mistakes resulting in loss to their security holders, the opinion of some of the highest priced and most reliable engineering authorities in the world was secured to verify every detail and pass upon the physical conditions as found.

These reports were so satisfactory that it was possible even during the panic to secure funds to prosecute the work without interruption.

THE MARKET SITUATION

The following information is furnished you, not with the prices at high levels where some insiders want to sell out, but at the lowest prices, where those best posted are the buyers, that the people of New England who own these securities and those who buy stocks from time to time, either for speculation or investment, may have confidence in their integrity as business enterprises conducted on merit, and in the way which they are treated by those in charge of their management, resulting in a mutual confidence which makes great things possible.

POSITION OF THE INDIVIDUAL STOCKS

The entire one million shares of ACME CONSOLIDATED is owned by about two thousand stockholders, the company has not a share for sale, and there is no person or syndicate controlling any block of stock for market purposes in any way, so that the simple law of supply and demand regulates the market.

The plans of the company laid out promise much of a permanent nature, and on merit with the turn in financial conditions, will, I believe, gradually advance to very satisfactory prices.

The entire nine hundred thousand shares of the LARAMIE, HAHNS PEAK & PACIFIC RAILWAY COMPANY have been disposed of by the company and are owned by about five thousand stockholders, very largely through a holding company, and very little of the stock has been for sale even during the panic, and higher prices can be expected at any time on merit.

Regular trains are in operation and will soon be making a regular schedule over the mountain division right into the heart of the mining and timber district, and the full line of 112 miles to the coal fields should be completed within a year. This company has a satisfactory traffic agreement with the Union Pacific Railroad Co., for a period of twenty-five years.

THE BOSWYOCOLO COMPANY is a holding company to consolidate the control of the railway company and the great coal fields of North Park, Col., of its ten million shares of 10 cents each, it has been completely financed at par for its shares with no commissions paid to anyone, with the exception of about $140,000 which will be offered at 10 cents per share to its stockholders and the public, and whatever is not subscribed for, if any, will be taken over by a syndicate formed for the purpose, which completes its financing.

The plans of the company covering the ownership of the railroad, of the great coal property, said to contain around four hundred million tons of coal in a vein 65 feet in thickness, provide for an increase in the par value of its shares from 10 cents to $10 per share, which increase will be given to its stockholders without cost. This stock at 10 cents per share I consider without question a great purchase.

This is the situation, and as we are about entering a new era of the greatest prosperity, as all conditions indicate, I have severed my connection with all other interests to give my entire time and attention to the Boswyocolo Company and its allied interests, and merit will now be reflected in market prices, I believe.

Respectfully,

ISAAC VAN HORN

REFORM PLAY WILL NOT HIT U. S. HARD

By ALAN DALE.

LONDON, July 25.—Let Newspaper Row lie low, quail, bite its nails in impotent fury and use cuss words, for it has received a crushing blow at the hands of James Bernard Fagan. Who is James Bernard Fagan? Ask it not, prithee, for you'll know next season when "The Earth" comes to N. Y. City on its sublime and singularly opportune mission of denouncing Yellow Journalism. I suppose I'm yellow, as the play amused and cheered me so! I must be yellow, for I'm always getting into hot water and being discovered and barred, and things like that. I must be yellow, for "The Earth" seemed so good to meh. Anyway, I try to be yellow, and to avoid being either blue or green.

"Oh, These Reformers!"

Oh, these reformers—likewise oh, these self-appointed censors, who try to do the Dickens racket, with none of the Dickens gumption. Although "The Earth" shrieks itself a delightful shade of blue in the face at the horrors, the enormities and the iniquities of the modern newspaper—as practised by a London monopolist with a circulation of "four millions a day"—he is, at the end, hoist by his own petard. He makes out a case that may feelingly be described as rotten, and so anxious is he to demolish journalistic immorality that he permits the brand, touchingly censored by the Seventh Commandment, to go unpunished. In fact, Journalism is the villain of "The Earth" and Adultery the hero. This is putting the case strongly. You'll see for yourselves. It is intended that "The Earth" shall hit New York hard. It won't. You'll see. It won't hit hard New York for the reason that it makes out a rancid and nauseous case. Its hero is much nastier than its villain.

Poor Newspaper Row! Mr. Fagan blasts it. His strong point is "gutter journalism." He seems to know all about it. It vexes and irritates him. It must be confessed that he says nothing new. All his indignation is as old as Dickens, and Dickens did it much better. Sir Felix Gayman, who is the malignant proprietor of "The Earth," tells his editor that journalism is addressed to the man in the street, and he who is in the street is not far from the gutter. Sir Felix is indignant at his editor's Oxford education. He doesn't want it. A newspaper cannot be run on Oxford principles. And so on. I'll cut it short, as everything Mr. Fagan says against modern journalism is said spasmodically in N. Y. by "Constant Reader," "Paterfamilias," "Old Subscriber" and all those blooming nuisances.

America Won't Stand For It.

I don't fancy that America will quite stand for Mr. Fagan's airy conclusions. For in trying to throw down yellow journalism he raises up and caresses a very nasty situation. Sir Felix is leading a campaign against a certain Wages Bill. The Bill is championed by a young Cabinet minister, a righteous creature who refuses to be influenced. He sends Sir Felix to—well, very far away. The Bill shall go through. It must.

Then Mr. Fagan gets in his fine work, which he firmly believes to be yellow journalism. He sees the Cabinet minister kissing a presumably perfect lady, puts his detectives on him, discovers an ugly intrigue (for she is another's) and then, with proofs in his pocket, demands the abolition of the Bill. The alternative is the exposure and ruin of the Cabinet minister.

The lady in the case—the Countess of Killone—is the heroine of "The Earth," and a very nasty heroine she is. If she is one of the bulwarks of non-yellow journalism, let us have it yellower than ever! She is old enough, and in the case at the Kingsway Theatre, where "The Earth" is running, she is ugly enough to know better. She is always sprawling on sofas with a cigarette in her mouth, clutching the Cabinet minister's hair in a ludicrous fashion. She hates her husband, of course. He drinks. You don't blame him. You'd drink, too, if you had her on your hands. So would I. Perfectly justifiable. This is the woman for whose disgusting sake Mr. Fagan takes up arms against yellow journalism. In his diatribe against the gutter he cherishes the cesspool.

SOUTH END A. C. TO HOLD GAMES

The first annual picnic and all-star athletic meet of the South End Athletic Club will be held at New Downer's Landing, Quincy Point, on Saturday, August 21, at 2 o'clock.

The open amateur events are 100-yard dash, 440-yard dash, 880-yard run, mile run, running broad jump, running hop, step and jump or two hops and jump, all handicap. The scratch events are 100-yard dash for novices, 440-yard dash for novices, mile run for novices and fifteen-mile Marathon run. Team races and swimming events will be arranged on application. A handsome banner will be given the club scoring the most points.

First prizes in the handicap events and fifteen-mile Marathon run are solid gold watches, gold medals for seconds and silver medals for thirds. Three valuable prizes will be given in the novice events.

The games are sanctioned by the N. E. A. A. U., and entries close August 18, with Francis P. Jordan, No. 60 Fiske street, Waltham, Mass.

The morning program includes 100-yard dash for boys under 14, 100-yard dash for girls under 14, 100-yard for three-legged race for boys under 16, 220-yard obstacle race, open; fat man's race and ball game. Special cars will run to the grove.

A fiddler has been engaged to provide entertainment for the old folks, and the committee on arrangements will make strenuous efforts to make the occasion a memorable one for all.

OLD CY IS BRIEF IN CONVERSATION

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 3.—Old Cy Young lives at the Colonial. Cy visits with ball players more and with outsiders less than he did years ago. He had been in a long, animated conversation with several players and had just gone over to to a cozy corner by himself when a traveling man dropped down in a chair beside him.

"How you feeling, Cy?" he asked.

"Fine," replied the veteran, lighting his big pipe.

"How's your arm this season?"

"Oh, just fair."

"How's the family?"

"Good, thank you."

"Crops down at Peoli all right?"

"Fine."

"Glad to be back in Cleveland?"

"I'm satisfied."

"Well, so long, Cy."

"So long."

Sewing Machines.

IT WILL be to your advantage to have your sewing machine repaired or get a new Singer at 224 Cambridge st., Boston.

$60 SINGER, good as new, for $5, at 36 Warren st., Roxbury, next to Hunt's lunch room.

PLAYERS DON'T WASTE THEIR COIN NOWADAYS

They were talking about the money spenders of the old days and the money savers of to-day in base ball, when Hughey Jennings said: "I've no doubt $25 was spent foolishly by the players in the old days where $1 is wasted now.

On one short trip with the old Louisville club I loaned $275 to my teammates, and there's no doubt the $275 was not spent for any wise purpose. There are teams made up of 18 or 20 men in the major leagues now that don't waste that much money in a season; nor half that sum.

"Why, I know a ball player in this league who started out on a four-week trip with exactly $4.75 in his pocket and he came home with $3.75 of it unspent."

"Written any songs lately?" George Moriarty, the Tigers' third sacker, was asked.

"Not lately," he replied. "I'm too busy trying to help the boys win a third pennant. When a fellow gives all the necessary time to base ball he hasn't time for poetry."

Just the same, several of Moriarty's songs will be sung on the vaudeville stage next season. Later on he may have a hand in musical comedy. Several vaudeville stars have asked Moriarty for contributions, and as soon as the base ball season is over he will begin writing words for music.

"It's a whole lot harder than people imagine," said George. "It may sound easy enough when you hear the song, and it may be easy to write a poem, but it's twice as hard when you try to fit words to music."

There is not a popular song of the last five years that Moriarty's memory does not shelter. He can whistle any tune after hearing it a first time, and he can play the keys as well as he plays third bag.

"Oh, Bill's all right," said Jennings when asked about the condition of Donovan. "The trouble with Bill is that he worries too much. He thinks his arm won't come around, and he worries himself to death about it.

"He visited several doctors and they told him that his arm was all right, but he lost a few games and therefore thinks that the arm is not in condition.

"If Donovan could win a few games it would restore his confidence, and that confidence restored, you'd see him pitch just as good an article of ball as he ever pitched.

"But Bill will come around all right; see if he doesn't."

A FEW PEOPLE DON'T USE AMERICAN WANT ADS

For the same reason that modern methods were once scoffed at by our forefathers, yet, in spite of prejudice, progress has its way. The successful majority employ the "WANT AD WAY" to secure tenants, or buyers, or help, or employment. They employ the AMERICAN, realizing that it is the only paper which will carry their message to nearly all of the people.

BOSTON AMERICAN

OUR POLICE DEPARTMENT

Friendly Advice to Commissioner O'Meara—Enforce All the Laws—Policemen Servants of the People

There was published in last Sunday's American an article on the Boston police department—a department the management of which is of the most vital interest to the people of this city. It was shown that THE LAW IS VIOLATED in many ways in the very heart of the city by street walkers, and by disgraceful eating house managers, and that thieves have become so bold that they invaded Police Station 5, where they stole $540 belonging to Patrolman John M. Jackson!

The American has NO QUARREL with Police Commissioner O'Meara or any member of the police department. But in the most friendly way we desire to draw the attention of Commissioner O'Meara to the fact that the Commissioner and every man under him IS A SERVANT OF THE PEOPLE, and that police officials have been placed in office and policemen in positions on the force to enforce the laws, and that IT IS NOT THE BUSINESS OF THE COMMISSIONER OR ANY MEMBER OF THE FORCE TO INTERPRET THE LAW.

There are undoubtedly a large number of able policemen on the force—honest, alert and anxious to do their duty. For these men the American has the highest admiration. But the present Police System is NOT THE KIND that keeps the streets free of objectionable women, closes up vile resorts, and runs down robbers and thieves.

When Mr. O'Meara admits, as he did in the American on Sunday, that street-walkers are monopolizing the most crowded business thoroughfares in Boston, but that he cannot and will not do anything to stop it because he might make a mistake, he convicts himself of nonperformance of duty.

When Mr. O'Meara declares that THE PUBLIC IS NOT INTERESTED in the disposition of complaints made against policemen or their trials by properly constituted police authority and the final disposition of the same, he is undertaking to put a construction upon his powers and duties as Commissioner that are NOT GIVEN HIM BY LAW.

When he declares that the trials of delinquent policemen and the findings against them are matters with which "THE PUBLIC HAS NOTHING TO DO," he is running very close to that rock upon which Police Commissioner Bingham of New York recently fouled before he was thrown out neck and heels from the police department of that city.

The police department of Boston has for a considerable period regarded itself SUPERIOR TO THE POWERS THAT CREATED IT—THE PEOPLE. It cannot too often be made clear that police officials and policemen are NOT RULERS, BUT SERVANTS, OF THE PEOPLE.

It is their business to arrest violators of the law after having obtained the necessary evidence against them.

Mr. O'Meara's comment regarding the article in the Sunday American is very brief, according to the Journal of yesterday. He declared: "I DON'T CARE WHAT THEY SAY."

Exactly so. That is the present attitude of most of our police officials. They DON'T CARE FOR THE PUBLIC. Therefore they do not compel the arrest of violators of the law. Police officials do permit the most brazen crowd of street-walkers that ever invested any city to ply their trade openly in the most crowded thoroughfares. Leicester Square in London, the plague spot of the British metropolis, is no worse.

According to insurance men, robberies were never so numerous and never before was such a small amount of property recovered from thieves.

Commissioner O'Meara had better revise his present program. A little more energy in arresting violators of the law, in closing disreputable resorts, and in arresting thieves, and a little less vigor in dealing with pushcart men, hack drivers, teamsters, newsboys and children of the streets would give Boston a much more effective police force than it has at present.

And above all, in the most friendly way, the American desires for the benefit of O'Meara and his men to state that THE PUBLIC IS VITALLY INTERESTED in its police department, and has A RIGHT to know everything that the police department is doing. There should be the widest possible PUBLICITY in every police bureau. Members of the force from O'Meara down should be made to realize that they are SERVANTS OF THE PEOPLE, INSTEAD OF RULERS, WITH POWER TO CURB AND ABRIDGE THE LIBERTIES AND RIGHTS OF CITIZENS AS THEY SEE FIT.

Gillett in Washington

The following appeared yesterday in the Washington dispatches to the Boston Herald:

"The House leaders are very sarcastic at the expense of Representative Gillett of Massachusetts, who forgot to vote and was unpaired on the motion to recommit. That was where the Republicans so narrowly missed defeat. They declare Mr. Gillett became interested in a novel and was reading in a near-by room."

Frederick H. Gillett comes from Springfield in this State. In Washington he is known as the "dean of the Massachusetts Congressional delegation." He has served through seven continuous terms, or since 1893.

A fine type of man to send to Washington, isn't he? If Gillett doesn't watch out the janitor may lock him up in the cold storage department in the House of Representatives and keep him there for a few months.

The trouble with Gillett is he feels too certain of his position as Congressman. A good, live, hustling opponent would surely wake him up and might defeat him at the next election.

JUSTICE GAYNOR ON DUTIES OF POLICE.

Justice Gaynor of New York, who made the complaint to Mayor McClellan which resulted in the dismissal of Police Commissioner Bingham from office, made this statement during the Bingham controversy that might be read with profit by Commissioner O'Meara and the other police officials and policemen of Boston. Citizens will also find Justice Gaynor's statement well worth studying:

"The despotism and lawlessness of the Police Commissioner is shocking to every American who knows what free government means, and what it cost in property and blood for our ancestors to acquire it. Russian methods will not be further tolerated here. They have been so long practiced that we are losing all sense of the dignity of free men and are becoming debased.

"Mayors and Police Commissioners are no more above the law than is anyone else. The law sets limits to the powers of public officers, and the first thing of all is for them to obey the law and keep within such limits. Officials under a free government cannot do as they please.

"This is a government of law and not of men, and an official who sets himself up above the laws is more dangerous to the perpetuity of our institutions and to public order and happiness than the worst criminal. Suppose all public officials, from the President down, should kick aside the restraints put on them by law and do as they please! Do you not see that that is despotism? Ours is a government of carefully limited powers to every official. The contrary is despotism. Despotism is that officials do as they please instead of only as the law limits and prescribes their conduct and powers. It is a sad thing to see a great and intelligent city in the rulership of persons who think they have us all by the back of the neck."

DR. PARKHURST'S ARTICLE

—ON—

Those Who Play and Those Who Drudge

Written for the American

By DR. C. H. PARKHURST

Copyright, 1909, by American-Journal-Examiner

IT is great fun to play. Play is man's normal condition. That there is, in average life, so little play shows how far removed average life is from ideal life. This does not mean that people are not intended to do things that mean something and that have value; for the opposite of play is not work, but drudgery.

Work which a man does, without hating to do it, is a form of play. We do not then exclude work when we say that play is a man's normal condition; we only exclude work that is disagreeable in the doing and that we are glad to have over and done.

A man said to his boy: "There is a big pile of stones down on the bank that I want you to throw into the river." Of course the boy said he was tired and did not want to do it.

When Work Ceases to Be Drudgery

"While throwing them in, see how many times you can hit the rock in the middle of the river."

That changed the aspect of the situation. It is play for a boy to hit something with a stone.

He threw them all into the river and was not as "tired" when he was through as when he began. It was work, but, at the same time, it was play, because it was not drudgery. It was action that went with the grain of the boy's natural disposition, and it is always play to do that, however much of valuable results may be accomplished by it.

It is not action that makes people tired. It is not doing things that makes them prematurely old; it is doing what they dislike to do; feeling one way and acting the opposite way; dragged by obligation and held back by inclination; and thus being in a condition of torn asunder.

It is for that reason that everything which goes on in the natural world is always so interesting, fascinating and restful. Whatever happens there happens easily.

The wind blows as though it liked to blow and shows no sign of being tired, even when going fifty miles an hour.

Sunbeams travel ninety million miles before reaching the eye, and are as bright and fresh when they arrive as when they started, and if, on arriving, they happen to strike some reflecting surface, they will start back on their return trip as good-naturedly as when they first left the sun

In describing the noise made by runnin brooks, we never say that they whine o that they growl, but always that they sing

Christ was saying something of this kind one day about the fretting, perspiring lif that people live, and contrasted peopl with the birds who, he said, do not "toil."

That does not mean that they do not d a good deal of work. They build thei houses, and some of them raise and graduate a family every year; but they like i and go around singing all the time they are doing it.

There is something utterly wrong in the whole human situation, that, with so considerable percentage of people, life is such a weeping and interminable grind.

We may not be able to see our way out of the situation entirely, and some may even be inclined to the opinion that there ought to be some grind in life as means of discipline. However that may be, there are hosts of people living by us to whom life is drudgery, all the time, and nothing but drudgery; and that is a situation that requires to be corrected. It not only ought to be, but it is fairly safe to say that it can be.

Some Play All the Time, While Others Drudge

A good many people are able to play a considerable share of the time, and those who can, have some responsibility for those who are obliged permanently to drudge.

When the drudges see other people at play they know that they are themselves being defrauded, because unable to have their own lives brightened by touches of sunshine and intervals of play-spell.

Above all is that condition of society a murderous one that robs a child of its inalienable right to play. Opportunity to have a good time and to be exempt from the pressure that makes life tiresome is as essential to the well-being of a child in preparation for wholesome manhood as its prenatal state in the womb of the mother is necessary to its existence as an infant.

Every child has a right to the chance of becoming a healthy, hearty and wholesome adult, and of that right he is robbed when put under the slavery of the mine or the workshop, whether that enslavement be with or without the consent and approval of the parent.

Any manufacturer who makes employes of the children is guilty of putting a blight upon both their physical and their personal development; a guilt in which the State becomes sharer by any failure to enact prohibitive statutes and by any delinquency in securing their impartial execution.
